Teen hit by car

A Wilmington teen was injured in a pedestrian accident Wednesday noon in front of Papa Gino's on Main Street in Wilmington.

Holly Pelletier, 13, of Glen Road was taken to Lahey Clinic where she was in guarded but stable condition. She sustained head injuries, but was conscious at the scene of the accident, and was able to talk to emergency personnel.

She and two friends reportedly were crossing the street when she was hit by a car. The driver of the car was identified as Marvin Weiner of Boutwell Street.

Dangerous intersection

The sound of screeching tires, crunching metal and breaking glass is heard quite often at the corner of Route 125 and Andover Street in North Wilmington. A design contract has been let for traffic signals for the intersection, but no date for installation can be predicted.

Lights for 125 intersection 'in design'

The traffic on Route 125 is fast, very fast. The speed limit at the Andover Street crossing is posted for 45 m.p.h. eastbound and 50 westbound, but many drivers push the limit. When an accident occurs, which is often, it is a bad one.

There was a fatality at the intersection in June, and another bad accident just last week.

There is some progress to report, but no official can say with certainty when the lights will be installed.

The town has put out a design contract for the signals. Green International Associates is designing the lights, at a cost of $16,700. Town Manager Michael Cairra said that once the design was complete, the town would ask the state DPW to put the project out to bid.

Former fincom member Peter Breen, who lives on Andover Street about 100 yards from the corner, has spearheaded a drive, securing signed commitments for more than $80,000 toward the engineering and construction of the lights.

Cairra said he was not ready to concede that there were no state funds for the project.

Green International had recommended a complete upgrading of the intersection, but that was rejected by the town. Cairra sees that as a state responsibility, possibly taking years.

Breen just wants the traffic lights. And he has much of the funding lined up for the lights.

Breen's efforts date back to March 1987, when he first wrote a letter to Wilmington DPW Supt. Bob Palmer. Since he started his drive, there have been several major accidents at the intersection, including one fatality and an accident in which a state police cruiser hit a truck broadside, seriously injuring the trooper.

The accidents at the intersection have reached the point where people working nearby are afraid to come to work.

"Our most important asset is our employees, and we won't subject them to dangerous working conditions, which is what we consider that intersection to be," said Mike Kenney, general manager of the Marshall Industries Eastern Corporate Center on Upton Court. He said that he has instructed his corporate office to look elsewhere for expansion sites, due to the town's lack of attention to the intersection.

He described what one of his managers saw recently on the way to work. There was an accident, and police were just arriving. One person was through the windshield, and another person was lying outside the door of the car, both badly injured.

"It's a gamble down there," Kenney said. "You see them smiling when they make it to the other side, breathing."

Marshall Industries is the fastest growing distributor of electronic components to computer industries, said Kenney.

In the three-plus years that the firm has been located on Upton Court, four or five employees have been involved in accidents in the intersection.

Kenney said he has personally witnessed two accidents. The number of accidents there is just staggering, he said.

Marshall has committed to paying $6000 toward the cost of the light.

State Rep. Jim Miceli said that he had not been asked to do anything in regard to the lights since the location is not in his district.

Cat trapping planned

by Arlene Surprenant

"Wild" cats continue to plague the Wilmington Board of Health as members addressed the problem Monday night.

The board learned that the Animal Rescue League has been contacted and will be rounding up more than 25 cats belonging to Regina Klements of Lawrence Street. That trapping is scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

Acting on neighbors' complaints, the board had recently ordered the owner to reduce the number of her cats to the legal limit of six. When there was no response, the board asked Animal Control officer Ellen Davis to undertake the job or get help from the proper state agency.

Davis cautioned persons living anywhere near Lawrence Street to keep their cats indoors on Friday and Saturday. An additional means of protecting a pet from being trapped by mistake would be to mark the flea collar with a phone number.

The board also discussed another complaint, this time registered by Davis. Davis told health officials there were now twice as many cats as before living in a renovated house in Hathaway Acres. The home, which is owned by Barbara Morgan, burned almost two years ago. At that time, health officers found numerous cats which had lived in unsanitary conditions and were left unattended in cages in the basement of the home. The board noted Monday Morgan had apparently returned to her home and her cats were again posing a problem for her neighborhood. One of the biggest concerns of the board is the possibility of rabies in connection with the feral cats. Health officials plan to serve notice to the owner that she will have to get rid of the cats as stipulated in their regulations.

Walkathon Sunday

Hundreds of youngsters and a few adults will take to the streets on Sunday afternoon in the annual Wilmington Community Fund Walkathon.

The fundraiser will step off from the Wilmington Common at 1 p.m. Walkers will be on streets for about two hours. The walkathon route goes along Wildwood, Woburn, High streets, Middlesex Avenue, Salem and Cunningham streets, Faulkner Avenue and Glen Road.

Pledge sheets are being circulated this week. Anyone wanting pledge sheets may pick them up at the Town Crier office.

Voter registration

Wilmington citizens who will be 18 as of November 6 have until Tuesday, October 9 to register to vote in the November election.

Residents may register at the town clerk's office at Wilmington Town Hall weekdays between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Additional registration hours will be on Sat., Sept. 29 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Mon., Oct. 1 until 8:30 p.m. and on Tues., Oct. 9 until 10 p.m.

Gorham is Shawsheen principal

by Arlene Surprenant

Richard Gorham, a computer science instructor and former principal in the Wilmington School System, on Monday assumed his new duties as principal of the Shawsheen School. Gorham replaces former principal Robert Coffill, who left to become a high school principal in Lebanon, New Hampshire.

"What it really boils down to is experience," said Supt. William Fay as he recommended Gorham for the position at last Wednesday's school committee meeting.

Gorham was in line for the vacancy along with Douglas Anderson and Maureen O'Hara, both teachers in the system. Fay told committeemen he felt Gorham had the edge over the other qualified candidates because he had previous experience as principal of the old Glen Road School and Central Elementary

District and his computer background would prove useful to the school.

A majority of board members said they were comfortable with the superintendent's choice and supported Fay's recommendation in a six to one vote. Andrea Paglia favored the candidacy of Doug Anderson, who had been an acting administrator at the Shawsheen School in the past.

Pavement eater

The town of Wilmington recently hired a contractor to "eat" the pavement on Aldrich Road. With the old pavement completely ground up and put down as loose material, a new surface of pavement will be applied. Watching from the sidelines are Assistant TM Jeff Hull, DPW Supt. Bob Palmer and Town Manager Michael Cairra.

Boosters funds to be 'boosted?'

by Arlene Surprenant

A move by Wilmington High's athletic director to take the 50/50 Raffle out of the hands of the school's Booster Club led to intervention by the Wilmington School Committee last week.

Committeeman Peggy Kane brought the issue up. She said she had had phone calls complaining the raffle was being removed from the booster's authority and profits were now going to the Varsity Club. Kane said after investigating the claim, she learned the Varsity Club was not a club at all but a designation for a line item in the Student Activity Fund. Kane asked for an audit of the Student Activity Fund and motioned that the raffle revert to the Booster Club. Despite the fact that some members wanted more information, the motion carried in a close four to three vote of the board.

According to Athletic Director Jim Gillis, the Booster Club is comprised of a group of parents, led by President Sally Radomski, who raise money for student scholarships and the end of the year banquet. The Booster Club reportedly ran the raffle for two years during basketball season and one year during football season. In addition, members also run the concession stand at football games.

Gillis said, because of the recent cut in the athletic budget which could force the layoff of assistant coaches in several sports, he was now trying "to find avenues to come up with more money." One avenue would be to divert proceeds from the raffle to the Student Activity Fund, which could help pay the needed salaries.

Principal Paul Fleming told committeemen Wednesday there's "a very established procedure" which is followed when money is either put into or taken out of the Varsity Club, under the direction. Business Manager Peter DeRoeve added, with the exception of 1989 and 1990, both the Athletic Revolving Account and the Student Activity Fund had been audited and copies of the audits had been sent to the committee.

Gillis told the Town Crier he was invited to last Thursday's meeting of the Booster Club and both he and club members were upset over the school board's discussion of the raffle.

"They (board members) made it sound like I'm a thief," he said.

Radomski told this paper "we were shocked when we found out it went to the school committee." She acknowledged some parents were upset by Gillis' intention to take away the raffle and were concerned about the future of their club. But, Radomski added, out of courtesy to Gillis, they first wanted to discuss the whole issue with the athletic director.

"It was never our intention for it to get to the school committee," Radomski said. She added her group will hold another meeting October 2 to discuss a letter which will be sent to Supt. William Fay and the school board.

Debate

State rep candidates will square off in a live debate on Monday night at the Elks Hall in Tewksbury. Incumbent Jim Miceli will be debating challenger Kevin Sowyrda in a forum run by the Wilmington League of Women Voters. The debate will be broadcast on cable channel 30. Town manager search begins

by Arlene Surprenant
 Wilmington selectmen plan to take their time and hire the most qualified person for permanent town manager, according to Chairman Bob Doucette.

At Monday's selectmen's meeting, Doucette told those in attendance "we won't be rushing into anything" as selectmen began the search for a new town manager. The next manager will fill a vacancy left by Buzz Staczynski, who announced his intention to leave last March. In the past few months, Michael Caira has assumed the position of temporary town manager. In a contract just signed by the board, selectmen promised to let Caira know by April 1991 if they would hire him as permanent manager.

Selectmen asked Caira to put together a packet outlining the best process to follow in hiring a new administrator. Robert Cain suggested they review the past process so they know they are following the Town Charter.

Selectmen said they would keep search costs "minimal." They decided to spend up to $3,000 to advertise in trade journals for qualified candidates. The former town manager had suggested they spend $10,000 on a search, but that amount was reduced at April's town meeting on a motion by Cain.

At a future meeting, the board will review the necessary qualifications for the job and time frame for the search.

Capuano says he'll run for selectman

by Arlene Surprenant
 Ring Avenue resident Tony Capuano surprised those in attendance at Monday's board of selectmen's meeting in Wilmington when he announced he would be running for a seat on that board in the April, 1991 election. The only selectman up for re-election next year is Robert Cain.

Capuano's announcement came during a discussion on the Salem Street truck exclusion, an issue which Capuano spearheaded.

Capuano told this paper Tuesday he was running because "I don't think the people are getting a fair shot from that board (present selectmen)."

"I'm running in the interest of fairness. It shouldn't be a question of who knows who. Someone has to deal with honesty and facts. I truly would like to help the underdog," Capuano said.

The outspoken resident said he is a candidate who will follow through on any promises he makes. Capuano pointed to the two year fight to pass the truck exclusion as one example of his ability to get the job done.

"I did what I said I would (do)," Capuano explained, adding, "I want the people to judge. I want them to ask themselves: Is this man going to work as hard for me as he works for the trucks?"

According to Capuano, his campaign manager is local attorney Robert Peterson.

High school staff prepares for evaluation

A team of 14 educators from New England will make an on-site evaluation of Wilmington High School on October 21-24, 1990. Principal Paul Fleming and his staff have been preparing for this evaluation for the last two years. The evaluation visit will be conducted under the director of the Commissioner on Public Secondary Schools of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. The NEASC visiting committee will be chaired by Dr. Robert Antonucci, superintendent of schools for Falmouth, Ma. Dr. Antonucci has had extensive experience in the NEASC evaluation program.

Mr. Fleming has explained that the purpose of the evaluation is to review from an outside professional viewpoint the self study materials which have been prepared by the staff, parents, students and citizens over the past two years. During the comprehensive self study, the staff attempted to identify the school's strengths and determined those areas in which changes would be beneficial. The intent of the evaluation is to assist the staff in its pursuit of quality education for its students. The goal of the evaluation is to stimulate a continued drive for improvement in the school.

The members of the visiting committee are teachers and administrators from a variety of schools in the New England area. They will spend three days visiting the schools, meeting with staff, students and parents and evaluating the effectiveness of programs offered.

Partnership program begins second year

by Arlene Surprenant
 The Wilmington Business/School Partnership has made quite a name for itself. As the successful program moves into its second year, Coordinator Al Fessenden is looking to solidify the unity between the school system and local businesses and expand into other areas to meet the needs of both partners.

The partnership was formed in 1989 to "insure that the students have the tools and motivation to become productive citizens and workers of the future." Currently, 17 companies sit on the advisory board, which meets monthly to plan how to best meet its goals.

Fessenden went before the school committee last Wednesday to outline the program and goals for the upcoming year. One of the main goals is to draw up a mini-grant guide that could be accepted at the October 11 meeting of the advisory board. The mini-grants would allow teachers to conduct enhancement programs in their classrooms. Proceeds from last June's successful golf tourney will benefit this program as will a $500 grant from Analog Devices.

The partnership is currently exploring the possibility of beginning a day care center at the Swain School. The program would be open to infants, pre-schoolers, and students in grades K through 6. It would service residents and employees of local companies.

Fessenden said he would like to expand the Read-A-Loud program to include all elementary schools in the system. In this program, volunteers donate their time to read and work with younger students on a one-on-one basis.

There is interest, said the coordinator, in a cooperative career internship program at the high school level. With such a program, the student is allowed to "shadow" an employee of a local company for part of the school day to help narrow down career choices. The program would be built into the regular school day.

Fessenden said he is also interested in promoting an ongoing mentorship program for grades 7-12. In this program, employees would work on a regular basis with students by offering tutoring, career guidance, and classroom presentations.

One concern of the coordinator is the two month break during the summer. Fessenden said there should be continuity during the year and eventually another staff person to help with the increasing workload. While the board was sympathetic to Fessenden's concerns, members said there was little they could do to help him at this time because of financial constraints.

RETIREMENT PLANNING

The hard fact of retirement planning is that you're going to need more money than you think. Living expenses won't necessarily go down when you stop working and have time to do the traveling and other things you always wanted to do - and even moderate inflation will eat into the value of savings over the years.

The earlier you can start saving for the future, the more time you can take advantage of tax-deferred earnings that grow faster. Make the most of IRAs and Keoghs, plus company sponsored 401(k)s. At retirement time, it's usually wise to roll over pensions into the IRA to put off tax demands as long as possible.

Another investment that pays off is equity in your home or vacation home. A paid up home can be a roof over your head - or better yet - a nest egg to invest (the first $125,000 of capital gains on the sale is tax-exempt). Selling a house that's larger than you need often helps cut living expenses, too.

Retirement planning is easier when you talk to us at...

MEDICINE: Before You Take It, Talk About It!

October is Talk About Prescriptions Month. Whenever you are given a new prescription, ask your doctor or pharmacist the following questions. Remember, the more you know about your medicines, the more likely you are to take them correctly, and so derive the greatest benefit from them.

- 1. What is the name of the drug and what is it supposed to do?
- 2. How and when do I take it, and for how long?
- 3. What foods, drinks, other medicines, or activities should I avoid while taking this drug?
- 4. Is there any written information available about the drug?
- 5. Are there any side effects, and what do I do if they occur?

Compromise reached on legal counsel

by Arlene Surprenant
A compromise was reached Wednesday when members of the Wilmington School Committee voted five to two to hire two local attorneys as legal counsel for their board. The vote effectively broke a previous deadlock of the board.

In a departure from past practice, Town Counsel Alan Altman and former school committeeman Robert Peterson were both chosen to represent the committee. Andrea Paglia and Phil Fenton opposed the compromise solution. Paglia said she still favored the third choice, the law firm of Murphy, Hesse, Toomey, and Lehane. Fenton said he was against paying an additional salary to Altman because it could be considered "double dipping" with taxpayers already paying a salary to the town counsel.

Bob Surran spoke against Fenton's logic. He explained Altman sets his fee according to his workload, which previously did not include legal work for the school committee. Paglia foresaw a future conflict for Altman if voters pass the Citizens for Limited Taxation petition to slash taxes to the 1988 level.

Overall, however, board members hailed the compromise proposed by Surran.

"We have a chance to have the best of two worlds with Mr. Altman and Mr. Peterson," stated Aldo Caira.

Peggy Kane, who previously supported the outside law firm, said she was willing to compromise and suggested, because of his background, Peterson handle the educational issues that come up. Surran had suggested the two lawyers work on a rotating basis.

Tax bills out soon

by Arlene Surprenant
Preliminary tax bills for fiscal 1991 will soon be sent out to Wilmington residents. Town Manager Michael Caira told selectmen at their meeting Monday night the Department of Revenue has authorized the town to send out the preliminary bills.

According to a letter to selectmen from Principal Assessor Tony Krzeminski, issuing preliminary bills would enable the town to avoid costly short term borrowing in anticipation of tax revenue. Because of the declining real estate market, said Krzeminski, the Wilmington Board of Assessors is considering an interim year adjustment to assessments. This, he added, will require more time to review and finalize values, which would delay the issuance of the actual tax bills.

Pipeline construction

Work is underway on a new gas pipeline parallel to the existing pipeline in Wilmington. Workers are shown unloading 24-inch pipe at the Avco (Textron) playing field on Lowell Street. A wide swath has been cleared for the work, which runs from the Burlington line near Marion Street to the Reading line near Route 93. The Tennessee Gas Pipeline ends in Salem, Mass.

Truck sign to stay in place

by Arlene Surprenant
A question of a safety issue centered on a sign erected for the Salem Street truck exclusion was laid to rest by Wilmington selectmen Monday as they decided to leave the sign in place. In addition, selectmen agreed to petition the state to post signs at the 125 exit off Route 93 forbidding heavy truck traffic from going past the North Intermediate School.

The whole issue was raised by Safety Officer Bobby Shelley, who told selectmen two weeks ago he was concerned with trucks being directed to take a left turn towards the middle school. Though he felt then the sign at the Middlesex Avenue/Salem Street intersection was not enforceable, he told selectmen he was wrong and the sign is indeed legal and enforceable.

Police Chief Bobby Stewart said Monday the crux of the matter is the town is now using a sign to direct trucks past the school. He explained in case of an accident involving a student, he feared the town could be held liable. Another concern, said the chief, is the safety hazard created when long tractor trailers try to make a left turn at that intersection. Chief Stewart said he would prefer trucks to make a right turn onto Middlesex Avenue and continue to the traffic signals on Route 62.

Selectmen apparently asked the police department last spring to monitor the impact of the truck exclusion when school resumed this September. Selectman Bob Cain told a group of area residents the town was just "acting in a proper manner" by following up on the signs.

All present were in agreement that the truck exclusion was working.

"We have less traffic coming through the town now," noted Selectman Chester Bruce.

"We're not doing anything with the truck exclusion; it's working fine," agreed board chairman Bob Doucette.

Jim Murray seemed to speak for his neighbors when he said selectmen should follow the old adage: "If it ain't broke, don't try to fix it."

Neighborhood spokesman Tony Capuano claimed the signs had reduced truck traffic by 80 percent. He told the board, members really had no authority to touch the signs since they had been approved by the state.

Selectman Mark Haldane raised another concern brought up by North Intermediate Principal Michael Tikonoff. He said the biggest problem seems to be when trucks reach the school, see the sign for the truck exclusion, and are forced to turn around in the school parking lot, thus endangering the students. The board decided to petition the state to get signs posted closer to Route 93.

Doucette asked the police department to continue to monitor the situation and report back to the board at a later date. Chief Stewart promised stricter enforcement efforts with truckers who violate the town's directive and make a right turn from Salem Street.

Board approves enhancement program

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington School Committee voted last week to accept recommendations from principals at the elementary and middle schools to enhance the curriculum for gifted youngsters in the system. The board had been forced to scrap Project Enterprise, which had serviced gifted and talented students in the past, because of budget constraints. However, they voted to put back $4,000 in the budget for some kind of enhancement program.

Elementary principals recommended each of the three primary schools hold a one day a week class after school for fourth and fifth graders who are deemed "gifted" by their teachers, Iowa test scores, and previous year's grades. Middle school principals suggested an Academic Enrichment Program be started at the North and West Intermediate schools for gifted and talented sixth graders. Classes would be held once a week during the school day.

Grant received for water mains

The Wilmington Water & Sewer Commissioners have received a notice of a Water System Rehabilitation Grant, from the commonwealth, amounting to $342 thousand. The notice was discussed in the meeting of September 20. The money is for the purpose of replacing existing water mains of two inches or less, in diameter.

The Commissioners will add an equal sum of money, making the total money available $684 thousand. The money will be enough to replace about one quarter of the present two inch water mains in Wilmington.

Planned to have new water mains are: Glenview Road, 300 feet; Meadow Lane, 300 feet; Ledgewood Road, 300 feet; Suncrest Avenue, 1,200 feet; Lockwood Road, 800 feet; Longview Road, 600 feet; Baland Road, 400 feet; Kirk Street, 400 feet; Pineridge Road, 900 feet; and Pleasant Road 700 feet.

To my supporters & to the voters of Tewksbury and Wilmington... a very sincere Thank you!

Primary Day was the start of a new beginning for Massachusetts. The Beacon Hill Gang is being purged. But Tewksbury and Wilmington are still being represented by George Keverian's Assistant Majority Leader, a 13 year incumbent, who continues to vote for wasteful spending and bloated budgets, and has consistently opposed spending reductions.

Kevin Sowyrda will have the guts to make the cuts. As a veteran school committee member, former official of the Division of Local Services, and award winning columnist, Kevin Sowyrda has the experience and courage to control spending.

Anniversaries of note

September 25 is a shared birthday for both the Town of Wilmington and for the City of Boston. Another institution with its anniversary on that date is American journalism.

It was in 1690 that the first American newspaper was published in Boston by Benjamin Harris. Only one issue of Publick Occurrences was published, as the Colonial Governor and Council ordered it shut down on Sept. 29.

The Town of Wilmington, although founded 40 years later, has lasted much longer than Publick Occurrences. The town celebrated its 260th anniversary on Tuesday. There was no official observance of the date.

One century older than Wilmington is the city of Boston, founded in 1630. This year's anniversary has also passed without any great fanfare.

All the attention this year is on the anniversary of Publick Occurrences. The New England Press Association is marking the anniversary in Boston this week. The only remaining copy of the paper is on display at the Boston Public Library, on loan from England. Reproductions are being printed and distributed.

Journalism has had many advances, in technology, in scope of coverage and in its role in society. What Harris started with a three-page sheet has spread to thousands of newspapers, plus electronic coverage.

The principle of a free press is something that has its roots in Massachusetts. The role of a free press in society is viewed as an essential element of democracy, and is included in the First Amendment to the Constitution.

Recycling program cuts 500 tons out of trash

The Town of Wilmington has recycled over 500 tons of material since the starting date of October 14, 1989. The success of this program is largely due to the tremendous support of the conscientious residents of the Town of Wilmington. The Town's efforts have been supported both in the form of volunteers and outright participation. The Town is currently closing in on its goal of recycling 550 tons within its first year of operation. This goal is definitely within striking range. Wilmington residents are strongly encouraged to continue to take their recyclable material to the drop off center and to spread the word among their neighbors. With your help over the next four weeks the town will achieve its goal of removing 550 tons of material from the waste stream at a cost savings of $62 per ton.

Participation is perhaps the most challenging issue for a recycling program. Convincing people to take their recyclable material to the drop off center requires a tremendous degree of publicity. Recycling requires a change in behavioral habits. Like most new habits recycling requires commitment and discipline on the part of individual residents. The town recognized the difficulty of changing people's habits and will continue to publicize the need to recycle.

Perhaps the second most challenging issue is establishing consistent markets for the recyclable material generated. The recyclable material must be of a particular type and quality to be acceptable. Newspaper, for example, is unacceptable once contaminated with materials other than newspaper such as phone books, glossy flyers, envelopes and stationary. Glass is acceptable only if received in the form of glass jars and bottles. Other types of glass such as glass windows are a different grade of glass and contaminate the glass collection. Once materials such as glass and newspaper are contaminated the value of these products to the final market is substantially reduced and in some instances totally unacceptable. With this in mind it is of critical importance that participants in the town's recycling program be aware of the specific types of material which are acceptable and how these materials should be packaged for disposal at the drop off center.

Newspaper is currently accepted at the town's drop off center. Newspaper may be presented in paper bags or loose but should not be tied in bundles with twine. Magazines in small quantities may also be included with the newspaper. As a general rule of thumb residents should not take more than 50 magazines to the drop off center on any one Saturday. Glass is another commodity which is recycled by the town. Glass is acceptable in clear, green or brown color and may be in the form of bottles or jars. Materials such as window glass and plate glass are unacceptable at the drop off center. It is also important to rinse glass bottles and jars before disposing of them at the drop-off center. Caps and lids should be removed. This will ensure that the material is acceptable by the vendor receiving the commodity. Aluminum is the third product which is accepted by the town. Aluminum may be taken to the center in the form of cans, foil items, siding and doors to name a few.

Once again these materials should be made as clean as possible prior to taking them to the drop off center. Usually a simple rinse of cans and foil is all that is necessary. It should be remembered that aluminum materials are not magnetic. Plastic bottles are also acceptable. These bottles should come in the form of plastic milk, water or juice jugs. These bottles may be distinguished by their translucent makeup. Plastic bottles should be thoroughly rinsed to remove milk or juice residue. Such residue will reduce the market value of these bottles. Caps and rings should also be removed from the bottles.

Prior to disposal at the drop off center each plastic bottle should be flattened to maximize the number of bottles which can be accepted in the storage bins. Corrugated cardboard is also acceptable in the town's recycling program. Cardboard should be as clean as possible and flattened prior to delivery. Returnable cans and bottles may be taken to the recycling center. Once again bottles and cans should be rinsed and caps removed. These returnable bottles and cans are separated out and turned in at an area redemption center. The money received from these materials is returned to the Town.

Leaves may be dropped at the center any time throughout the year. Only leaves are accepted at the drop off center. Branches or grass clippings except for incidental amounts with the leaves are unacceptable. Leaves may be disposed of at the site in a loose or bagged form. The town is planning a curbside pickup of leaves to be conducted during the week of October 29 and during the week of November 26. Please watch the newspaper for details.

With everyone's cooperation the recyclable materials will be acceptable to the various recycling vendors. Adequate and consistent markets for recyclable materials will result in significant cost avoidance and in some instances actual dollars being returned to the town. Finally, while the town encourages everyone to recycle, the town must limit participation at the Wilmington drop off center to Wilmington residents only. Individuals from other communities should consult their own town hall to obtain information about recycling activities going on in their area.

If your town is not currently recycling and you wish to start a recycling program you should encourage your board of selectmen or public works superintendent to start one. They can provide you with helpful hints. In the meantime, the Town of Wilmington strongly encourages its residents to continue the fine example which has been set in recycling.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would, through you like to thank all the voters who were inconvenienced election day due to the mixup of precincts 3 and 6 for their patience and help in correcting the situation.

I would also like to say that all tallies checked out accurately at the end of the night thanks to the expert and caring work of our election workers.

But most of all I want to thank my maintenance crew who dropped everything and came to my aid to correct the situation, it was all do to my hurried preparation of the strips I gave to the men, and neglected to supply them with the check sheets.

Having three districts makes it a confusing setup to say the least and the error made for a very trying day for all us.

Again, thanks to all involved for helping Kay and I through it.

Pat Ward

Dear Larz:

I was sorry to read of the recent resignation of Neil Waisner as chairman of the finance committee. We are all indebted to Mr. Waisner for his five years of dedicated service to the public good. The finance committee's job was more difficult this year because of cutbacks in state aid. It will be even more difficult next year. Mr. Waisner's considerable talents will be missed, especially if the CLT Petition (Question 3) is passed and local aid is reduced further.

In a letter to the Town Crier, Selectman Haldane made an interesting observation about Question 3, saying that by lowering taxes it would allow people to give more to charity if they wish to do so. This was in response to a suggestion that Question 3 would hurt the needy.

This is the first time I have read any comment from a local leader on the effects of Question 3 and I applaud Selectman Haldane for responding to this question candidly - although I doubt CLT sincerely cares much about the needy. But, this is not the major issue Question 3 raises.

While many people think the $2 billion in required budget cuts will affect only other folks (not themselves), according to what I have read, Medicaid, general relief and other mandated programs cannot be reduced even if Question 3 is passed. The $2 billion in cuts will have to come from the $6 billion in "discretionary" budget items like highway and bridge repairs, aid to cities and towns, state police, state hospitals etc. and the cuts would be huge. It has been suggested that major cuts in these areas would have a severe impact on the state's declining economy and on towns like Wilmington. The employment picture could darken further.

Things have changed since Question 3 was first proposed. State revenues have fallen; the economy has declined further; the country is on the brink of war; and voters sent a strong message to politicians in the primary election. Maybe those favoring Question 3 should reconsider now before further harm is done to our state. If not, I suggest that all town leaders and candidates who are supporting Question 3 should clearly spell out in writing where the $2 billion in cuts will be made and how they will impact the state's economy and the town.

So far, they have been very vague, indicating they have not thought through the impacts of this proposal. If our local leaders (and candidates) have thought them through, they should be able to itemize the cuts and describe the impacts. This would help us to decide on Question 3 intelligently instead of emotionally. If they are unable or unwilling to do so, they are not leaders in the true sense of the word.

Very truly yours,
Don Cassidy

Dear Larz:

Let's call it what it is, shall we? The word is "censorship," plain and simple. Was the name Haldane or Himmler, who recently called for a change in the Town Crier's editorial policy? For those of you who support the suppression of thought and opinion, merely for the so-called protection of the public or the individual, well then Mark is buying what you're selling.

This stuff makes the hair on the back of my neck stand up. Just what we need, another politician who thinks he knows what's best for us. You're not alone, Herr Haldane. Jay Tighe and Paul H. Sullivan used this forum to openly suggest the same denouncement of free speech and expression. It's funny how one day, Jay was praising my letters while I sat in his office. "You're driving them (Miceli and McCoy) crazy," he said with a smile. Then weeks later, he submitted a letter promoting a "change in the editorial policy of the Crier," while he defended McCoy and kissed Miceli's you know what, in the process. And then there's Biff Sullivan, that know it all, see it all, Cliff Clayven sound alike, Potsie Webber look alike. It seems the only opinion worthy of print or sound is his own.

It's painfully obvious that his inability to capture the attention of the readership is only out matched by his jealousy toward those of us who can. Now the bottom line. If you don't like it, tough bleep-ski. If you want to promote your form of social order, then break out your white hoods, slap on your swastikas, and march beat yourselves down Main Street, but remember boys, while you're goose-stepping past Dunkin Donuts, and you're waving at the rest of the sheep ready to blindly cheer you on, I'll be waiting, writing with one hand and flipping the bird with the other.

Remember the word is censorship! The most pornographic act ever forced upon a society. Come on boys, make my day! I have only begun to write!

The Sleepers Must Awaken!

Frederick S. Stone

P.S. It's time to write a book

Dear Larz:

I can't believe that a newspaper such as the Town Crier or any newspaper for that matter would lower themselves to such a nauseating level as to print the dribble written by one of the most hateful and bitter authors I have ever read - a Mr. Frederick S. Stone. I take back saying the word "author," I should have said "hacker."

Mr. Stone's attempt to turn a serious and informative public affairs program on local Cable Channel 6 into his own sick parody of alleged favoritism is sad. I feel sorry for this bitter and mislead individual. Perhaps if he tuned in more to my public affairs program "Wolfgang's Woburn" he would learn what real politics and government is all about. He would surely increase his knowledge because from the contents of his letter he has nowhere to go but up.

Mr. Stone will be glad to know that I did contact Representative Miceli's opponent to appear on the program. I never received a reply back from him. You can't very well have "equality" as Stone puts it if only one half participates.

My Public Affairs Program serves an important educational function for Channel 6's viewing area. The program is primarily devoted to Woburn personalities and those who affect life in Woburn by their decision making. It was entirely normal to have Representative Miceli on the show since he is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee and a neighbor to the north in Wilmington. His decisions at the State level certainly affect the region. He provided informative and interesting dialogue, contrary to Stone's unbalanced observations, while on the show.

Someone who is as bitter as Stone is against Miceli (for whatever asinine reason) and has such a huge axe to grind should develop some intestinal fortitude and move out of Billerica and into Wilmington and challenge Representative Miceli in the next election. I hardly doubt Stone would do this manly thing; he is the type of negative person our society is all too familiar with these days - criticize, snipe, insult, but never provide action or solutions.

The sleepers have awakened. Stone snores on.

With regards,
James J. Wolfgang

Frankly speaking

by Paul Sullivan

The best part of having a weekly column is the use of it as a bully pulpit.

That is what I am going to do this week. I want to think about the decision of the Tewksbury School Committee to make children walk as much as three-quarters of a mile to the school bus stop. Included in this group of children are my kids ages five and seven. They are required to walk to the end of our street, seven-tenths of a mile. The decision of the School Committee caused quite a stir throughout the town — not to mention my house.

The uproar included a visit by a group of parents who demanded that the School Committee reverse itself and restore the busing service to last year's level. The committee refused. You might ask yourself why would a group of people elected by the people refuse to adhere to their request. The reason is very simple, they have guts. Guts, now there is something we have not seen in politics in the last few years.

The School Committee has taken some hard stands in the past, but none as difficult as telling a group of parents that they won't be able to keep their busing at a level they have become used to.

What the Tewksbury School Committee has decided to do is what we have been clamoring for in government. They are prioritizing the school budget. They have decided correctly that it is more important to have teachers in the classroom then it is to be politically popular.

I have to admit that sometimes while I am at the bus stop waiting for my children — if my wife so assigns me — I find it easy to grumble about the School Committee policy. But when I go and visit the school, I know that the most important place to spend our dwindling resources is in our classrooms.

In these days when the polls show us that the public has distrust and dissatisfaction with government on all levels, the Tewksbury School Committee is a breath of fresh air. If the state government had the same type of courage to make difficult decisions that the Tewksbury School Committee has, we would not be in the financial state we find ourselves in.

If I see Bill Emerson, Ben Maxwell, Pat Meuse, Charles LaBella or Rick O'Neill, I'm going to shake their hands for being the type of public servants that we need in these difficult times.

Praise for Waisnor

The following is a copy of a letter sent to Neil Waisnor by Shawsheen Tech Supt. Charles Lyons. Waisnor recently stepped down after five years on the Wilmington Finance Committee.

Dear Neil

Often we feel what we do goes unnoticed. Such, however, is not the case in regard to your work on the Wilmington Finance Committee. Your understanding of fiscal matters, as well as the need of students to receive the best education we can give them, is appreciated far beyond my ability to acknowledge in this letter.

You are a true professional, performing your difficult task with the utmost efficiency and ability. Your citizenship and leadership are reflective of your dedication and commitment to the Town of Wilmington and its residents.

I am grateful for having had the opportunity these past several years of working with you and appreciate your tireless efforts on behalf of Wilmington and the students of Shawsheen Tech.

Sincerely,
Charles Lyons

Skibbe challenges Buell for senate seat

by Lisa Cutone

First Essex and Middlesex District Senator Robert Buell (R), will be challenged this year by Newbury Democrat Patricia Lang Skibbe.

Senator Robert Buell

Senator Robert Buell is a firm believer in the "home rule" style of government. He believes in giving power to local governments and not mandating from the state level. He would like to limit the amount of state government regulations and laws which he says "harass small businesses." Buell says that "the key to the lagging economy is the creation of more jobs in the private sector." This will be effected through "less government intervention" and less restricting rules and regulations.

Buell is a fiscal conservative. "I am a tightfisted, frugal person and I carry these characteristics into my legislative philosophy." Buell proves this statement with his voting record. He has voted against the large tax packages passed over the last two years and against the unbalanced budgets of the past three years.

Still Buell realizes that there is a need to raise revenue. He was in favor of a tax package which would have taxed the tobacco industry. He would also like to improve the method in which sales tax is now collected in Massachusetts. Presently some trades are allowed a deduction per service which makes tax collection and auditing very difficult.

Buell says he is inclined to vote for the CLT petition because there is no alternative. "Having just passed two big tax packages in 1989 and 1990 we still have a deficit. Where is it going to end?" He realizes that there are problems with the petition but says that there were problems with Proposition 2 1/2 and that worked after the legislature made some changes.

Buell has been a consistent supporter of a woman's right to choose in regard to abortion. He says that it is consistent with his conservative platform. He also supports the death penalty citing that many people who receive life sentences end up on parole or out on furloughs.

Buell should not be adversely affected by the anti-incumbent mood of the electorate because he casts his votes the way the public wants him to. He is part of the minority Republican party on the hill and sees himself as a "libertarian" trying to restore the two party system in Massachusetts.

Patricia Lang Skibbe

Skibbe, 45, says she is "running to restore two-party democracy to the district...because she believes that the people of the district deserve more leadership and service than the present Senator has been giving them." Skibbe, a mother of two and a real estate broker, has a good deal of public service experience. She has been on the Newbury and Groveland Planning Boards, and is presently a Merrimack Valley Commissioner.

Some people may not agree with Skibbe's views but she is clear on the issues. She supports freedom of choice regarding abortion saying that the American people should be entitled to make their own individual decision on this sensitive and personal question.

She is firmly committed to environmental quality. She sees the solution in paying now to clean the environment and keep it clean rather than save money only to pay for health problems, toxic waste cleanups and costly purification plants in the future. Her solution lies in having inspectors who monitor developments near water supplies and having regional cooperation in the disposal of toxics and recycling efforts.

Skibbe opposes the operation of the Seabrook Nuclear Power Plant and has served on the Steering Committee for Citizens within a 10 Mile Radius, an anti Seabrook group. She cites the health hazards, the radioactive waste problem, and an egregiously poor evacuation policy as her rationale.

As a former history teacher at Triton Regional High School she values the education of our children. Skibbe wants quality education for children - she says that the price we pay is worth the money in the long run.

Skibbe is willing to reevaluate Proposition 2 1/2 and goes on to say "I'm starting to think that we can't (live responsibly with Proposition 2 1/2)...we need to rely less on regressive real estate tax, and more on broad based taxes anyway, taxes which allow people to pay more in their earning years." Like most Democrats, Skibbe labels the "no new taxes" sentiment as the "most irresponsible attitude."

In regard to the CLT petition Skibbe says "If you have a headache you don't shoot yourself in the head." She believes that there is money to be saved but it will not be easy and the CLT petition is not the simple solution people want to believe that it is.

backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

Where did the summer go? It is probably just me, but it surely seems as though the seasons are coming and going faster and faster each year!

We scraped ice off the car's windshield on Tuesday morning, Sept. 18. This simple act always signaled the onset of fall for me. Most of the leaves of the pumpkin and squash plants were blackened, yet the tomato plants were untouched. It is time to shift the mental gears away from fresh corn and warm weekends to cider, pumpkins, and sweaters.

There are some gardening resolutions we should consider making for October, assuming we want next year's garden to be better than was this year's. Here is my own short list of tasks for the next several weeks:

1. Shred, burn or bag this year's garden refuse. Doing so will keep down the population of many destructive insects which would otherwise winter over. Further, it is critical that plants which were diseased be removed from your property. Fungus and disease spores are amazingly winter hardy and will plague you next summer unless you clear them out.

2. Harvest leaves! We are fortunate here in Wilmington and Tewksbury to have an abundance of maple and other deciduous trees.

If there are none near your property, check with the recycling center in South Wilmington. They will be making discarded leaves available to gardeners right through November.

Laves are one of nature's true (and free) gifts to our gardens. It is impossible to turn under too many leaves. You can make your garden, in effect, a "working compost heap" by adding leaves in the fall and manure, either fresh or processed, in the spring. Leaves add track elements to the soil but their primary benefit is as a soil conditioner. They become miniature sponges as they break down and aid immeasurably in the garden's ability to retain and meter out water through the heat of summer. I like to spread three or four inches of maple leaves over the garden's surface in October, add an inch or so of manure in early April, then rototill everything in by mid-April just in time to plant the peas.

3. Clean and store the tools. I use only three garden tools from spring through fall. They are a long handled spade, a hard rake and a hoe. When I take the time to clean them properly and store them where they will remain dry, they last at least twice as long as would be the case if neglected.

This will wrap it up for 1990. Hope to be back in April of 1991, barring the unforeseen.

Class of '58 looks ahead

One of these days, in the near future, members of the Class of 1958, Wilmington High School will be celebrating their fiftieth anniversary.

Fiftieth anniversary???

It is only about 32 years since the class left Wilmington High School!

That's right! But everyone in that class is now about 50 years old, and everyone is going to gather to celebrate. Besides, it is a class which has some importance in Wilmington!

There is Bobby Doucette, selectman, and Bill Fay, superintendent of schools, and Bob Shelley, safety cop of Wilmington, to name some of the more prominent members of that class. Others to be included are Joe Barry, Johnny Amaro and Warren Newhouse.

Newhouse points out that while the class was still in High School the word was that everyone said it was the class that would never amount anything.

Newhouse has come east, from Montana, to attend the festivities. Montana is a good state to live in, he says. He is about 50 miles from Yellowstone National Park, and the country is well inhabited - by bears!

Hair is the Total
You

by Linda Gaffey

PART OF THE STORY

A key decision a man must make about his hair is where to place the part (if he wants a part at all). The placement of the part is an important device for narrowing or widening a man's entire face. It is an instant eye-catcher, an important diversionary tactic to draw the eye toward or away from a facial feature. The closer a part is to the center of his face, the narrower a man's entire face, and specifically his forehead, will appear. The farther away from the center the wider his face will appear. A man's hair can help bring his forehead into balance with the rest of his face. Clever part placement can create the illusion of either a wider or a narrower expanse, whichever is desired.

ICI Resins plans facility to handle chemicals

The public hearing before the Wilmington Board of Appeals Tuesday evening for ICI Resins was larger in scope than previous discussions had indicated. ICI is asking for a special permit because the firm is planning a new and larger facility. So far, in its planning ICI has spent $2 million, with the end not yet in sight.

ICI occupies the plant which, many years ago was Polyvinyl Chemicals. Polyvinyl and Avco, back about 1960 cooperated in the construction of a sewer which would connect both plants with the sewer to Boston, then being constructed. Avco is now Textron, facing on Lowell Street and ICI faces on Main Street, near the Town Farm railroad bridge. The two firms are, in a sense, back to back with extensive acreage.

ICI's hearing was necessary because it is preparing to handle four corrosive chemicals, in a small way, and has to conform to both the new Wilmington bylaw, voted in the town meeting last spring, and new requirements of the federal statutes, recently voted.

ICI is planning to improve the quality of the waste water from its plant. It surprised the new representative of the Wilmington Planning Board, Dick Longo of Allenhurst Way who remarked that the company was growing, and he was pleased to hear about it.

Longo's remarks came after Larry Fitch, project engineer for ICI discussed the new parking facility his company is planning. There will be parking for 206 vehicles. Town bylaws call for 167.

Fitch made a half apology to the appeals chairman, Bruce MacDonald, saying it was the first time he had discussed this type of facility under the new laws. MacDonald assured Fitch that, for him, it was also a first time.

Fitch said he expects the facility will be operational by next June. The plans will have to be submitted to four Wilmington boards for their votes. In addition to the Board of Appeals, the Planning Board, the Water and Sewer Commissioners and the Board of Health will have to vote on approval. The Planning Board will be discussing a site plan review next Tuesday night.

A complete list of the chemicals mentioned Tuesday evening, involved sodium hydroxide, hydrochloric acid and paco. All will be handled in a facility planned to be constructed of concrete.

When the project has been completed, the Board of Appeals was told, the waste material will be directed to the WRA sewer to Boston.

Fitch was accompanied by a consulting engineer, Jack Josci. Also present was James J. Tanin, an engineer who is Textron's industrial sources director.

Tewksbury school news

Dewing

As the school year begins, the Pac of the Dewing School has already begun many new and exciting activities. Some of which include the opening of the new school store on September 11, the fundraiser kick off for September 21, a playground fundraiser dance on October 19, the opportunity for the sixth grade students to attend the Stone Environmental School in Groton, November 14-16 with an introduction meeting on September 25. As well as Santa's Workshop, the book fair, spaghetti supper, bottle drives, field day, the sundae party and at least the first stage of the new playground equipment to be installed, and much more.

This year the school will be involved in the Crest for Education points program, where students and staff will be saving Crest box tops with the imprinted serial number or expiration date or the plastic over wrap from the pump dispenser for points as well as a visit to the dentist which will earn the school free educational equipment. This program ends by January 15, 1991.

The school is also continuing its "Learning Tools for Schools" program where apple seals are collected from Scott products such as Scott towels, Viva towels, Scott tissue, Cottonelle, Waldorf, Family Scott, Scotties, Softkins, Viva Accents and Scott Family napkins, in turn for an Apple Image writer Printer. Saved those seals! This program ends January 31, 1991.

Anyone wishing to help contribute to either of the above programs, please contact the Pac in care of the Dewing School.

The first Pac meeting will be held September 13 at 7:30 in the school library. Any parents wishing to attend are encouraged to do so. The Pac still has openings for a school photographer, a hospitality chairperson and members for the playground committee. Any parent unable to attend who would like to volunteer for any activity, please fill out the volunteer list sent home and return to the school.

Heathbrook

The Heath Brook Pac held its first meeting Wednesday, Sept. 19 and there was quite a turnout. Parents new to the school came early to meet board members and were given a look at the school store.

Committees were picked for the coming year and it was nice to see some new people volunteer. One event that drew a lot of volunteers was the Haunted House, which will be set up for the students on October 31. There's certainly a lot of work going into that project!

Some of the new ideas that are being looked at this year are some sort of graduation for sixth graders and a Birthday Book Club, through which parents can donate a book to the school library in honor of their child's birthday. What a great way to add books to the library!

The programs committee is looking into having a Science Fair for grades three through six. There seems to be a lot of interest in that idea as well. Of course it would be strictly voluntary, but it looks like a lot of students would want to participate.

The weekend of October 20-21 has been set aside for our annual fall cleanup of the school grounds and completion of the playground.

The school will again be participating in the Book-It program. The 50s dance will be held again this year, as well as other annual events such as the roller skating party, family night, bake sales, the book fair, and kids corner, which will take the place of Santa's Secret Shop.

The annual fund raiser will kick off September 28. With the financial restraints facing our schools this year, fund raising is more important than ever and we're hoping for great success in all events this year.

The next meeting will be held October 17.

Trahan

The Trahan Elementary School Parents Advisory Committee (PAC) held its first meeting

Wednesday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. The guest speakers included William Leceese, principal, Dr. DeAngelis, special education director, Mary Lou Adams, project Charlie coordinator, Jeff Sheerin, from M.J. Newborne, Co., Inc. with samples of the items we will use this year as fundraisers.

The schedule of the monthly meetings is as follows: Oct. 16 at 9:30 a.m.; Nov. 13, 7 p.m.; Dec. 11, 9:30 a.m.; Jan. 22, 7 p.m.; Feb. 12, 9:30 a.m.; March 19, 7 p.m.; April 23, 9:30 a.m.; May 21, 7 p.m., and June 11, 9:30 a.m.

This year's membership drive will begin on September 10. We hope to have a lot of new members sign up and have a voice in how the money raised during the year should be spent. New ideas on how to raise money are always welcome.

The PAC has already scheduled programs for the children; a Pilgrim Show from the Plymouth Plantation on October 23; Santa's Secret Workshop on November 27, 28 and 29; breakfast with Santa on Dec. 8; Rich Charrette on March 1, 1991; Sundae Night on April 9; the annual Spring Fair in May, and the fourth grade spaghetti supper June 4, 1991.

We are looking forward to a great year and we hope to see you at the meetings and events. Thank you for your continued support, The Trahan Pac.

Inservice program creates staff opportunities

The Wilmington Public Schools Professional Development Committee, comprised of teachers, principals, and directors, has the responsibility of developing workshops and programs that will best serve the specific needs of its educational community.

The objective of the inservice program is to create opportunities for Wilmington's educational staff and administrators to acquire the latest research on educational trends, to discover new approaches to teaching traditional subject areas, and to expand their repertoire of instructional strategies and learning techniques.

This year Wilmington has added a new component to its inservice program. Interservice, a program from S.E.E.M. Collaborative, will be offering to regular education teachers and administrators several workshops, which are consistent with availability in Wilmington's inservice schedule.

The following dates have been designated for Wilmington's Inservice Program: September 26, November 28, January 30, March 27, and May 29. These workshops will be from 1 to 4 p.m. There will be early dismissal for all students on those given days. There will be no morning or afternoon sessions for the kindergarten classes. The second session of the Integrated Pre-School Program will be canceled. The Pre-School Special Needs Program will have its afternoon session canceled. Teachers of those canceled classes will be able to attend the inservice program workshops as well as the regular education teachers.

"Brownie" retires

Whether you call him "Brownie," "Ned" or Forrest, you'd also now call him retired. Brownie Downs (right) was honored by relatives, and friends at the Sons of Italy on Saturday night. With him are his former boss, Bob Palmer and his wife Helen. Downs was assistant superintendent of public works.

'Brownie' Downs given a shopping spree

Forrest "Brownie" Downs, after 37 years as an employee of the Wilmington Department of Public Works has retired. He started out as a laborer of the Highway department. When he retired, he was Assistant Superintendent of the Department of Public Works (DPW).

A retirement party was held for him in the Sons of Italy Hall in Wilmington Saturday, September 22. The hall was filled to capacity. Brownie received a certificate, as a gift, which gave him unlimited credit to a number of stores in the Wilmington Center area. Everyone present could recognize the names, even though none of the stores exist anymore.

Brownie now has unlimited credit to such places as Woodside's Pharmacy, the Wilmington Bowling Alleys, Weinberg's Department Store, Poole's Bakery and the Little Giant Liquor Store.

He also received a silver Baldwin Apple, a customary retirement gift for Wilmington retirees.

Mary "Chick" Johnson, now retired, was for many years the clerk and secretary of the DPW - the girl who listened to the screams over the telephone that the street had not been plowed.

Chick presented a citation about the work in the office, and told how the work was sometimes difficult, "but we had a lot of fun." Then she put her arm around Brownie, and said "Let's let them worry about the fun we had!"

Monthly inspections for Butters Row bridge

A routine inspection was done on the Butters Row bridge in July, according to Jane Garvey, Commissioner of Public Works. In a recent letter to State Rep. Augusto Grace, Garvey said she has instructed district engineers to review the bridge's condition on a monthly basis, as suggested by the representative.

Garvey said the department will schedule substantial repairs for the bridge after the Burlington Avenue bridge is open to traffic.

Town Manager Michael Cairra told selectmen Monday he has monitored the condition of the Butters Row bridge with the state and has been assured it is structurally sound, even with its increased traffic load these past few months.

Commissioners steamed over water main plan

Chairman Arthur Smith and the Wilmington Water Commissioners had several reasons why they would not approve of the installation of a 12 inch water main at their meeting of September 20. The proposal was to install a 12 inch water main to connect the end of Upton Road in North Wilmington with Jonspin Road, a separate road in another subdivision, about half a mile northerly, off Andover Street.

The involved section of Jonspin Road is "over the hill" from Andover Street, and cannot be seen without going onto that road and up the hill.

Irene Woodfall of the engineering firm of Allen & Demerjian was at the commissioners meeting to discuss the proposal. The firm she represents seems to be planning an industrial park at the present end of Upton Road. She had already discussed the proposal with the Wilmington Planning Board, the Wilmington Conservation Commission, and it seems, someone in the Wilmington Fire Department.

The proposal was to install the 12 inch water main before any other work was done. Afterwards a street was to be constructed to connect the two roads. The idea of connecting the two streets seemed to have come from the fire department.

Chairman Arthur Smith and Water Superintendent Paul Duggan had several remarks to make about the proposal. The other commissioners had nothing to say, but they nodded their heads in approval of the remarks of Smith and Duggan.

Smith told the lady that "it is impossible" to put in a water main in Wilmington which goes over private land or involves a street which is not a public way. Woodfall protested that "it is going to be a public way!"

Duggan spoke up to say that Jonspin Road is not a public way, and further that water system which was installed on that street "wanders off and on the street."

Smith added that there was "no engineering" for those water mains, and that "our water mains are only on public ways, Period."

Duggan told of the plans displayed at a public hearing, presumably before the Wilmington Planning Board. The proposed connection between Jonspin Road and Upton Road was spoken of as being a recommendation of the Wilmington Fire Department, he said.

Smith: "Jonspin Road is a nightmare! They never did any surveying!"

During the ensuing conversation Woodfall mentioned that the Wilmington Conservation Commission would not let her firm plan a short section of the road which would cross a small wetland, where water flows toward Route 125. She told the commissioners that she is now engaged in altering the plans for the connecting road, uphill, to go around the source of the water.

Smith: "You do not have to do that! The Conservation Commission cannot stop you from crossing at that place!"

His last remark was that "We have a modern water distribution system, and we are going to maintain it as such!"

- Previous Free Calling Area
- ▨ New, expanded Free Calling Area

We've expanded local calling so that you can call all bordering cities and towns as part of your local toll-free calling area.

This is a result of a recent Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities ruling that restructured rates and charges for telephone customers effective October 19, 1990.

As part of this restructuring, your basic monthly service charges will be increased, but that increase most likely will be offset by better values in local and toll calling.

Because in addition to a larger toll-free calling area, you'll also get reduced rates on toll calls within Eastern Massachusetts.

So whether you're calling for business or pleasure, it won't cost as much to stay in touch on New England Telephone.

Straight teeth talk...

WHEN SHOULD BRACES START?

The answer depends on the type of problem, the stage of tooth development, and the attitude and potential cooperation of the patient.

Some children have "functional problems" such as crossbites, sucking habits, or chronic mouthbreathing. These are often treated early, around age seven to nine, because they can interfere with normal eating, speaking or breathing. So-called "functional appliances", a special breed of removable acrylic appliances, are used by some orthodontists at this time in cases where jaw growth and arch development need to be altered.

Most problems, however, can wait until age eleven to eleven and a half when the permanent bicuspid teeth start to come in, signaling that the rest of the permanent teeth will be erupting in the next one to one and a half years. This is important because the orthodontist knows that most treatments take two to two and a half years and cannot be completed until all permanent teeth are in and straightened. If treatment starts too early, there is the danger that treatment time (and cost) may be prolonged.

The initial visit to the orthodontic specialist, usually at no charge, will always answer this key question.

A public service message.

Tewksbury bids farewell to Safety Officer "Joe" Cormier

by Bill Conlon

One of Tewksbury's finest left the town's service recently, and a huge crowd filled the Elk's Hall on South Street on Friday to pay tribute to Officer Martin "Joe" Cormier, in a retirement party held in his honor.

An overflow crowd of nearly 500 filled the hall, with tables in back used to seat many.

Former selectman Paul Sullivan, now a morning talk-show host on WCAP, served as Master of Ceremonies for the event, scolding those around him with his acid wit.

The mantra of the night was Joe's saying of "Bootie, Bootie, Bootie," which Chairman of the Selectmen, Bill Hurton, said Cormier mumbles on the golf course for good shots, bad shots, and anybody else's shots. Stickers bearing a likeness of Santa Claus, with the words "Bootie, Bootie, Bootie" were seen on lapels and dresses around the hall.

Cormier has dressed up as Santa for Christmas for many years.

Stories about Cormier were the centerpiece of many speakers.

Former Selectman Dick Morris told of a former police chief telling Cormier to correct a problem with people parking in the fire lane at the Stadium Plaza. Morris said that Cormier ticketed a number of cars, then returned to work the desk at the police station.

An hour or so later, Morris said, an elderly lady came in with a ticket and complained that she was there to buy her medicine, and that she was unable to walk very far.

Whereupon, according to Morris, Joe then took the ticket and angrily noted that "These guys would ticket their own mothers" and promptly tore up the parking ticket that he himself had written.

Morris also told of playing golf with Cormier a few days earlier, and that Cormier hit his ball into tall grass. While searching, Morris found the ball, but said nothing and pocketed it. A few seconds later, he said, Cormier announced that he had found his own ball, which just wasn't possible, and proceeded to play through.

Current Deputy Police Chief Walter Jamieson told a childhood story of how his cat had been badly injured, and that Cormier was the officer sent to put the cat out of its misery. Cormier went behind the garage, he said, and they heard the sound of gunshot, then another, and another, until all six shots had been fired. Jamieson said he later went to bury the carcass, but it wasn't to be found. His dad instead told him that "the cat got up and ran away." True or not, the crowd loved it.

Jamieson said he got his vengeance after being promoted to deputy, by giving Cormier every unpleasant

Senate recognition

Retiring Officer Joe Cormier was given a certificate of recognition by the Massachusetts Senate by state Senator Patricia McGovern, for his years on the Tewksbury police force.

"Angel for an angel"

Dottie Cormier, right, was presented a craftwork angel for giving up her husband every Christmas as he made his traditional rounds dressed as Santa Claus. Barbara Mackey, wife of the current police chief, John Mackey, said it was "an angel for an angel" in presenting the gift.

job he could find. The deputy also presented Cormier with a sweatshirt which read "Feline Exterminator, have Glock will travel," in a reference to the new police handgun, the 9 millimeter Glock semi-automatic pistol, which Jamieson said would prevent Cormier from having to reload so often.

During the night, Cormier was given citations for his service from the Great and General Court, by state Rep. Jim Miceli, and from the state Senate, courtesy of Senator Patricia McGovern. A citation by the selectmen was also awarded.

Cormier also received plaques in his honor from the Massachusetts Safety Officers League; from the Tewksbury patrolmen, marking his service dates from March 24, 1959 to July 31, 1990; and received an honorary membership to the Lion's Club.

Sgt. Cliff Bolton, and Officer Bob Westaway, teamed up to give Cormier a new sawhorse, one of his trademarks while working traffic details. The old sawhorse, painted orange and with a mount to hold a traffic flag, was retired as well.

Given the microphone, Cormier said that he worked under only two police chiefs in the town, John Sullivan and John Mackey, adding humorously that "it sounds like a 2-seater outhouse, John and John." Joe reminisced about his start on the force, when he was handed "a hat, a badge and a gun" and told to go to South Tewksbury and "use your common sense." He said that at the time he didn't know where South Tewksbury was.

"I'd like to thank the town of Tewksbury for letting me make so many friends, that you see here tonight," he concluded.

Once the formalities were over, Cormier stepped down from the dais and received a long line of well-wishers, well into the night.

Tree Talk

by Mike DiGiorgio

One of the hardest but most important lessons to learn about raising successful fruit trees at home is the value of pruning. The first pruning should be done at the time your fruit trees are planted, in the spring in Northern regions and in the fall or winter in warmer climates. Select trees that are two years old and three to five feet tall. After planting, prune off all but three to five strong branches that spread in different directions and form a forty-five degree angle with the trunk. These should be cut down to eight to ten inches, or, on peach and apricot trees, to only two to four inches.

A fruit orchard, or even one tree, can be a source of delight and delicious eating, but growing fruit trees requires special care and knowledge. For sound advice, come to A & M NURSERY AND FLORIST, 911 East Street in Tewksbury. We're convenient to downtown, off Rte. 93, and offer full-service landscape design, all you need to plan, plant and grow anything from fruit trees to a copious vegetable crop. Phone 851-4472. Open at 8 every morning, til 5:30 Mon-Sat. 8-4 Sundays. Shop early in the cool of the day.

HELPFUL HINT: Many apple, plum, pear, and cherry trees require crosspollination from different varieties of the same kind of fruit.

Nursing home has 24-hour admission

Wilmington Woods Nursing Care Center has announced the initiation of a 24-hour admission service, effective immediately.

By dialing (508) 988-0976 any time, a caller's request for information regarding tours or admission will be processed by the admissions coordinator, Kathleen Dugan.

Since the opening of Wilmington Woods in July 1989, the nursing home has been dedicated to providing its residents with the highest quality of life. The expanded service will expedite information to the community concerning all aspects of admissions to the facility.

Counseling service offers programs

The Wilmington Family Counseling Service, Inc., a town-funded, non-profit agency, is offering two groups starting the first week in October.

Group I: Coping with Alcoholism in your Childhood.

This group for adults who grew up with alcoholism in their families will explore the roles played by members in their alcoholic families and characteristics developed as coping mechanisms. Current problems with trust, dependency, control, and expression of feelings will be discussed followed by structural exercises to help group members to develop healthier ways of coping and to enhance communication skills.

This adult children of alcoholics group will be offered Wednesday evenings from 7 to 8:30 starting October 3.

Group II: Addictive Relationships

Have you ever wondered why you continue to choose relationships with people who are emotionally unavailable? Or do you find yourself consistently in emotionally and physically abusive relationships? Or do you too often put others' needs before your own and have difficulty saying "no" to those you love? "Yes" answers suggest you may be trapped in a pattern of addictive or co-dependent relationships.

This group will explore these patterns, the reasons for repeating them, and how to develop healthier relationships in which one's own needs are met.

Many members will have grown up in dysfunctional families and already will have explored these issues through individual therapy or ACOA groups.

This addictive relationships group will meet Monday evenings from 7 to 8:30 starting October 1.

Both of these groups will be led by Karl Peters, LICSW, whose specialty is substance abuse and who himself grew up with alcoholism.

Anyone interested in joining either of these groups should call 658-9889 to register by September 26, 1990.

The cow is coming Oct. 6

Those who have been wondering what those ads in the Town Crier and on Channel 6 proclaiming "The Cow is Coming" are all about, are advised that on Saturday, October 6, the Wilmington Lions Club will hold a truly unique event.

On Cow Path Meadows, formerly the High School practice field, beginning at 11 a.m. the Lions Club first Cow Chip Sweepstakes will be held. Into the equally divided subdivision of Cow Path Meadows, Boz the Cow of Chestnut Street will meander through the meadow to choose the location of his first movement of the day.

Judges from the local Rotary Club, "Honest" Ken Spinelli and "Hanging" Harry Cunningham will be closely supervised by His Honor Si Cutter in the event of a close call. Members of the Lions Club have been busily offering sites throughout the meadow and have proclaimed a $5,000 prize for the lucky deed holder selected randomly by "Boz."

The event, while being of great interest to the investors, also promises a carnival like atmosphere. The Wilmington Lions would like to invite everyone to go and enjoy the proceedings. King Lion Bob Power has promised such entertainment as the Shriners clowns, assorted mimes, the Wilmington High School Jazz Ensemble and the High School cheerleaders. Hotdogs will also be available. The Lions hope that everyone planning to attend the Wilmington/Chelmsford football game will arrive early and enjoy the festivities.

The Wilmington Lions Club would like to thank all of the citizens who have invested in Cow Path Meadows and look forward to seeing everyone on Saturday, October 6 at 11 a.m.

Family history

Wilmington native Sylvia Neilson has donated a copy of her book, a family history, to the Wilmington Memorial Library. It was accepted by librarian Philip Meriam. Entitled "Lars and Dorothea's Kith and Kin" it tells of her parents' generation emigration from Denmark. Her father, Peter Neilson, was the first immigrant to serve on the Wilmington School Committee and the Board of Library Trustees.

Wilmington senior topics

Council meets October 1

The October Council on Aging meeting will be held in the function room of the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center Monday, October 1 at 1 p.m. Remember, your council can be effective only if the seniors it serves are able and willing to guide the members by their presence and input at every meeting during the year. Our town manager told the chairman if he can get away from his duties of managing the town, he will try to drop in during the meeting.

Dr. Leavitt

Dr. Leavitt will be at the Center Friday, Sept. 28. He will be treating ailments of the feet starting at 9 a.m. Take a number as you enter the center. If you are arriving by the minibus let us know if you want to see the doctor. He will be staying at the center only until he treats those seniors waiting for him.

Fall fair October 20

The weeks are passing very quickly. It is now only three weeks until the Senior Fair is in full swing on October 20 at the Center. This is all the seniors fair. All the articles sold are donated by all of us and the money earned is used to pay for several therapeutic socials and all articles needed to run programs at the Center under the council. This is the largest donation we receive that allows us to keep all programs at the center free to all. To make enough money for the many programs, supplies and equipment replacement, many handcrafted and homemade items will be needed. Also baked goods of all kinds will be needed for the pastry table, and throughout the day to sell along with the meals.

Many beautiful articles have already arrived, but many more will be needed. If you have been making some at home when they are finished you can take them to the Center or call and we will have them picked up by a committee member. If you can price them the committee would be very appreciative. We are already receiving calls asking if there is going to be a table of mittens again this year. We are saying yes. If all the seniors who knit or crochet will make one pair of mittens the mitten table will be filled to the delight of the young mothers arriving to buy them.

All of us receive articles for gifts that we do not want to return, but will never use. If you have one, the Fair Committee would appreciate a donation of it for the new items table.

The therapeutic social will be a dinner dance at the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Wednesday evening Oct. 10. A roast beef dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Music for dinner and dancing will be by the Big Band Sounds of Chet Harnden. A $3.00 non-refundable deposit will be required when signing up. Please do not ask us to sign up for another unless it is a spouse. If you are working and cannot get to the center when it is opened, call the coordinator at 657-7595.

Many seniors may have received an official looking document in a red, white and blue envelope. They are asking seniors for money under the guise of protecting Social Security. Please do not send them money. Social Security at this time is in good shape and is not falling apart. The AARP magazine has stated this type of soliciting is illegal and may be violating the law. They will be prosecuted if reported. The latest is called "Senior Coalition." If you receive a mailing from them throw it in the basket. There is a toll free number you can call if in doubt from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.; 1-800-234-555A.

Redmen charge past Central

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

Lawrence Central Catholic coach Mike Cassano opened the door to victory just a crack, and Tewksbury High School's high powered offense charged smack through that gap in handing the defending MVC champions a 22-15 loss in a conference showdown at dreary Veteran's Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Central, winners of 13 straight conference contests dating back to last fall's appearance in the Division II Superbowl, had taken a 15-12 lead with 32 seconds left in the third quarter after Kevin Labrecque bolted over for a one yard TD and quarterback Matt Shaheen added the two point conversion.

Redmen senior wide-out Sean Mackey suffered a neck sprain on the conversion and was knocked from the game temporarily, setting the stage for some fourth quarter heroics.

It is in that fourth quarter that the TMHS coaching staff smiled inwardly when Cassano decided not to punt from his own endzone with 3:13 left to play in the game.

Central took the two-point safety rather than kick, making the score 15-14 with 2:23 left.

The free kick gave Tewksbury excellent field position, and the Redmen went right to work picking apart the Red Raider secondary.

Junior quarterback Dana Boudreau (6-11-1, 129 yards) found senior Sean Conley with a 22 yard pass to advance the ball to the Central 26. Mackey then came back into the game despite his injury and immediately burned the hosts for the game winner as Boudreau pumped-faked and found Mack with the 26 yard game winner along the left flat.

Boudreau capped his brilliant game with a rush for the two point conversion and a 22-15 Redmen victory.

Tewksbury had taken a 6-0 first quarter lead when Boudreau scored on an 11 yard run. Central came right back in that quarter to lead, 7-6 when Mike Lumia scored an a three yard burst and Jon O'Sullivan toed the PAT.

The big-play Redmen offense burned the Raiders before the end of the half when senior running back Tim Lightfoot took a draw play 86 yards for the score and a 12-7 TMHS advantage.

Central eventually took the lead, but even while ahead Cassano's team appeared to be trailing thanks to Tewksbury's speed advantage.

Like Lowell in the first week of the season, Central was no match for the Redmen at the skill positions. The Redmen led in total yards 285-148, with good balance between the ground game (156) and the passing attack (129).

Lightfoot again had a big game for the winners with 118 yards on just 11 carries.

Now first-year TMHS head coach Joe DeGrosso is perfect at 2-0 as he prepares his team for a Doucette Field showdown with the Andover Golden Warriors Saturday at 1:30.

"They have three Division One college prospects in the offensive line, so they'll be tough," warns the TMHS coach. "The first time they got the ball against Chelmsford they took the ball 15 plays down the field and scored."

DeGrosso knows however, that this Tewksbury team can score from anywhere on the field. "This is pretty close to the best skill group of kids that we've ever had here. Mackey, Conley and Lightfoot can score from any place on the field, and Boudreau is only and junior and always improving."

The Tewksbury coach had some special praise for the work of linemen Paul Mottolo, Andy DeFelice and Marc Whynot. "Mottolo and DeFelice came up unbelievably big for us Saturday," offered DeGrosso. "They were playing against one of the best linemen in the state (Sean Finneran) and he had only four tackles defensively."

"This Mottolo kid was awesome at defensive tackle also," noted the TMHS coach. "He bench presses 325 pounds. He's just a strong kid."

Conley also took charge at just the right moment late in Saturday's game. He stepped in when Mackey was injured and came up with two great punts and a pair of key catches for the Redmen. "He's in the Brian Aylward-Dennis Vecchi mold," praised DeGrosso. "He's a real tough kid."

Thus far the Redmen are relatively healthy despite playing a pair of schools with many more bodies along the sideline. "After those two tough games we're in good shape," noted DeGrosso. "But these kids have been in great shape all year. We had a great camp and everyone worked very hard in the offseason."

The hard work is obviously paying off for a team that should be in the thick of the conference title chase right on through Thanksgiving.

TMHS homecoming Saturday

This Saturday is being billed as Tewksbury High School's Homecoming-Sports Festival. The day gets underway at 8 am when the Redmen Football Club hosts a pancake breakfast at the high school cafeteria.

At 10 a.m. the TMHS girls' varsity soccer squad hosts Andover at the high school followed by the Tewksbury-Tyngsboro field hockey showdown on the same field beginning at 11:30. The high school band will play before both the soccer and field hockey games.

The day will be capped by the Tewksbury-Andover football battle at Doucette Field starting at 1:30. The homecoming queen and her court will be selected at halftime of the football game.

comeback

Tewksbury High School's Bob Coughlin races a Westford Academy player for the ball early in Monday afternoon's 4-2 non-league Redmen victory. The Redmen still trail the red-hot Wilmington Wildcats in the Small School standings of the Merrimack Valley Soccer Conference.

Wilmington Pop Warner

A' squad whips Reading, 26-13

The Wilmington Wildcat Pop Warner A team rolled to its second consecutive victory with a 26-13 win over Reading Sunday.

Brian Tildsley's aerial attack was capped by a 45 yard touchdown pass to Phil Ritucci, who made a spectacular catch and run.

The offensive attack was made possible by the outstanding line play of David Maglio, Jay Iannacchino, Joe Alonardo, John Florence and David DiPasquale.

David Sullivan had two touchdown runs, one a 65 yard scamper around the right side. Josh Levesque again had a 100 plus yard rushing game capped by a three yard touchdown run. Josh Warford added an extra point conversion with a fine catch.

Defensively, the team was led by Stephen O'Neil who made numerous tackles and had a blocked punt and a fumble recovery.

Other defensive standouts were Brian Meades, Chris Carter, Brian Ashdown and Richie Muse.

Wilmington next plays Watertown at home Sunday, September 30 at 2 p.m.

B team impresses

The B team scored an impressive 13-0 win against a tough Reading squad.

The team was inspired by the leadership provided by captains Billy Holloway, David Vitale, Colin Sullivan and Jeff Senarian.

The offensive line, led by Steve Ritucci, Jeff Farese, Wayne

Francis, Dave Bennett and Dan Bates, opened up huge holes all day for the running backs.

Rob Bentley scored all the Wilmington points on two long touchdown runs.

The defense was tested by a fine Reading offensive team. As it has all year long the defense was strong when it had to be. The defense was led by Doug Ross, Wes Dunham, Adam Mazza, Rich Gillis and Jeremy Antonuk.

Wilmington's B team will have to give an exceptional effort against next week's opponent, Watertown. Please come by and support all the teams next week at the Glen Road Park.

C team rolls

The C team scored a decisive win this week over the Reading Rockets, 27-0.

Their record so far this year is 3-0-0. This week's offense was led by Lee Trimarchi, Sean Kerrigan, Bill Harrison and John Plunkett.

The offensive line fired off the line consistently, opening up some huge holes. They were led by John Briand, Chris DeJulia and Shane Warford.

The defense did an outstanding job, leaving the Rockets scoreless.

Some of the standouts were the O'Toole brothers, Mike and Pat, Phil Bates, Adam Frost, Brian Mason, Pat Carter and Jason Brigham.

It was great to see one of the team's captains Eric Clancy, who was just released from a two week stay in the hospital with appendicitis on the sideline cheering his team on.

D team perfect

The D team upped its record to 3-0 with 27-0 win over Reading.

Quarterbacks Tom Southmayd and Tim Gillis led the offense. After a scoreless first quarter, the D team came alive. Jay Isberg ran 41 yards for a touchdown and Tim Gillis threw to Tom Baratta for the extra point. Just before the half ended Tim Gillis ran 35 yards for a touchdown. Chris McDonald ran in the extra point.

In the third quarter Tim Gillis scored on a 37 yard run. Rory Ballou then scored the extra point. Late in the fourth quarter Derek Mazza scored on a 22 yard run.

Excellent runs were also made by Jamie Campbell and Tom Southmayd.

Ready for Hillies

Wildcat defender Mike King rides this Lawrence runner to the ground in MVC football action. The Wildcats travel to Haverhill Saturday.

North Reading Softball Tourney

The Fourth Annual North Reading Over 30 Softball Tournament is history (and none too soon for some aching bodies). The tournament was a huge success in all respects. There was a record number of players with 250 players and teams from Wilmington, North Reading, Arlington and Reading. Over $2,000 was raised during the two day event.

For the third year in a row the North Reading Police team won it all, beating a tough Trilogic team.

Rose's made the best showing from Wilmington, losing to the Horseshoe in the semifinals. Other teams from Wilmington were Colonial Park Liquors, Jera-Lynn, Rocco's and Joe Peters' Misfits.

A special thanks goes to the Horseshoe Lounge, the Wilmington Kiwanis, Snooky Lynch, Bob Ennis, Pat Lee Sr., PJ, and all the volunteer umpires.

Headed for Haverhill

Wilmington coach Ed Harrison and his Wildcats are pointing toward the Haverhill Hillies Saturday afternoon.

MVC ticket policy

At the September 6 meeting of the Merrimack Valley Conference, the conference adopted a conference-wide ticket policy for all contests.

Effective this school year, admission to Merrimack Valley Conference contests will be $3.00 for adults, $2.00 for students with the exception of Thanksgiving football.

Special promotions such as senior citizens and elementary age students remain the prerogative of each member school.

Softball tourney Oct. 5-7

On the weekend of October 5, 6 and 7, there will be an over 30 men's softball tournament in Wilmington. The tournament will be run as a one pitch modified, double elimination.

The draw for games will be held Thursday, October 4 at 8 p.m. at American Legion Hall in Wilmington. An entrance fee of $100.00 will be collected at the draw.

All proceeds will benefit the Wilmington Recreation Department. For more information, call Herb Mason, 508-658-2365 or Mark Peters, 508-658-6346.

TMHS cross country

TMHS girls top Indians

The Tewksbury High School boys and girls cross-country teams journeyed to Billerica for the opening meet of the season and both came away with solid efforts.

Although it was not the best weather for a hard run over a 2.8 mile, hilly course, the TMHS athletes did themselves proud by putting forth strong efforts on a hot and muggy day.

The boys lost a close one, 26-29, while the girls won by a solid 20-36 score. The winners of both JV races were from Tewksbury.

Joe Bangs and team captain Steve Brann chased Billerica's Don Fay all around the BHS layout, but had to settle for second and third behind the determined Billerica harrier. Peter O'Callaghan ran a gutsy race to finish fifth, but after that the Indians wrapped it up by taking places six, seven and eight.

Dave King took the lead in the junior varsity race and never looked back. His effort was duplicated by Kristen Phillips in the girls JV race as she won by 35 seconds.

The girls' varsity race featured a strong Tewksbury group out in front. Heather Farrand forged ahead from the start followed closely by team captain Maureen Forsyth, twin sister Kim Farrand, and Kara Zajac. Heather, Maureen and Kim finished first, second and third and Kara finished close behind Billerica's Laura Traynham.

The one, two, three finish locked up the meet, but two freshmen, running their first race turned in fine races to take ninth and tenth - Christine Hooper and Kendra Hansford.

Wilmington boys undefeated

The Wilmington boys' under ten (II) traveling soccer team remains undefeated after notching wins over Middlesex League Division Two rivals Melrose and Burlington last week.

The team's season record now stands at 3-0, with the opposition scoring only two goals against the Wilmington squad.

Wilmington won its' home opener on Saturday, Sept. 15 in a hard fought match against a tough Melrose (II) team.

Solid defense was the story as the boys were able to withstand a number of Melrose charges.

Brandon Reinold tallied the first goal and Joe Kane scored his third of the season for the 2-1 final. Game captains were Josh Michaud and Brandon Reingold.

The best defense is a good offense sums up the team's 3-2 victory over Burlington (II) on Saturday, September 22.

Wilmington totally dominated the game, with constant pressure in the Burlington end. Matt Jones and Josh Michaud handled the goaltending chores to preserve the shutout.

Matt Senesi broke the ice midway through the first half, taking a perfect centering pass from Danny Sweet and driving it home. That was to be all the scoring in the first half, although there were many near misses, particularly by the line of game captain Craig Irwin, Joe Kane and Brandon Reinold.

Wilmington broke loose in the second half, as Matt Coyne set up Brandon Reinold, who drilled the ball past the outstretched hands of the Burlington goalie.

Josh Michaud scored the final goal, smartly following up on Matt Senesi's rebound off the crossbar.

The strong defensive unit led by Chris Maglio and game captain Matt Jones kept the opposition at bay for most of the game. Special praise goes to Eric Bromley, Eric Swiezynski and Josh Michaud who showed their versatility by playing three different positions in the game.

Wilmington 3 Medford 0

Wilmington's boys U-12 Division III soccer team turned in a fine performance on Saturday as they came up with another impressive victory, beating Medford by a score of 3-0.

Earl Burns played great in goal, turning back everything Medford had to offer. He made several sensational saves. He has a total of two goals scored against him in three games.

Sharing Earl's shutout was the great play by his fullbacks Buddy Phillips, Alex Athanassiou and Terry Boland, and his halfbacks Chris Burns, Sean McNabb and Chuck Vallas.

The offensive attack began with Matt Kacamburas scoring the young Wildcats' first goal. Assisting with great passes were Eric McBride and Chuck Vallas.

Wilmington scored again in the second half with Mike Garabatti and Casey Murphy setting up Mike Genetti.

The team put the finishing touches on the game with a third goal being tipped in by Andy Falanga after receiving a great pass from Peter Grasso.

The young Wildcats will host Melrose this Saturday at 1:30 at the Shawsheen soccer field.

GU10

Wilmington vs Burlington

The GU10 team opened its' fall season September 8 with an impressive win over Division I Burlington.

Wilmington held a two goal lead at halftime and went on to win 7-0.

Scoring were Lisa Dellascio with two goals and one each from Sabrina Shattuck, Alicia Paquin, Beth MacDonald, Kristen Thomas and Lindsay Bruno.

Wilmington vs Westford

Westford handed Wilmington its' first defeat, 4-2. The winners scored first on a breakaway goal, but Wilmington responded with a goal by Amy Axelrod to tie the score 1-1 at halftime.

Despite another goal by Lisa Dellascio, Wilmington's defense couldn't hold off the strong Westford team.

Wilmington vs Wakefield

After taking a setback from Westford the previous week, Wilmington rebounded with a strong offensive and defensive effort.

Wilmington scored early in the game by attacking the Wakefield goal. Lisa Dellascio scored from the left side after Wakefield continually tried to kick the ball out of the penalty box.

Wilmington continually made the defensive plays and set up a breakaway goal for Lauren McCarthy, who outran the Wakefield defense.

Sabrina Shattuck put the game out of reach with Wilmington's third goal. Kristen Thomas continues to be superb in goal with her diving saves, quick kickouts and fine all-around play.

As an added feature the GU10 team viewed a spectacular professional soccer game at Nickerson Field in Boston on Saturday night.

Boys under 14-1

The under 14-1 boys are off to a great start this season with a 4-1 win over Andover. Early in the game forward Glenn MacNeil was able to put the ball into the net, taking the Andover goalie by surprise. Eric Jones made the assist. Soon after Eric Jones scored an unassisted goal, making it 2-1.

The team then came on with a vengeance. Danny King passed the ball to Richie Barden, who then passed it to Eric Jones who thought he made goal number three, but unfortunately it was called out of bounds. Andover then knew that Wilmington meant business and was able to score. Goalie Brian Carroll came back strong and wouldn't allow another goal.

Forwards Darren Bishop, Patrick Cahill and Greg Peters played a superb game by continually keeping the pressure on the other team.

Halfbacks David DeSantis, Paul Heigham, Ryan Swasey and Doug Olender were able to keep feeding the ball to the forwards.

Goal number three was scored in the second half. Danny King headed the ball to Eric Jones who was able to score the hat trick.

Fullbacks Keith Audette, Kevin O'Leary and Garrett Whittemore were able to help out goalie Richie Barden throughout this half.

Andy Armata was strong at halfback. He powerfully kicked the ball over to Eric Jones who notched another Wilmington goal.

Boys under 12-1

The Wilmington boys' under 12-1 team started its' 1990 fall season, salvaging a 1-1 tie with a tough Westford club followed by a strong 4-1 win over Tewksbury.

Wilmington opened its' season against Westford with some back and forth action, as both teams took turns driving the ball up and down the field. Wilmington drew first blood when Tom Heigham drove a ball high and deep from the right side toward the Westford goal. The Westford keeper misjudged the ball and the shot ended up bouncing over the goalkeeper and into the goal.

Westford slowly started to take over the game and soon scored the equalizer. The second half turned into a one-sided match, as Westford pressured the ball in the Wilmington end while Wilmington's offense couldn't seem to move the ball.

A superb effort by keeper Chris Kilburn supported by fullbacks Doug Bonarrigo, Alex Bromley, Jay Isberg and Scott Swiezynski kept Wilmington in the game.

During the first half of the Tewksbury game, the struggling Wilmington offensive play continued, as Tewksbury controlled the ball for most of the first half.

However, Wilmington took advantage of its' few offensive opportunities. Bill Covino broke free down the right wing and drove a hard shot toward the goal. The ball bounced off the Tewksbury defense to Tom Heigham, who drove the ball into the net.

Later Darryl Plimpton scored the second Wilmington goal after a flurry of shots by the Wilmington forwards.

Meanwhile, some spectacular goalkeeping by Joe Bamberg shutdown Tewksbury for the entire first half. During the second half the Wilmington offense came alive. They started to control and pass the ball for several drives deep into the Tewksbury end.

An accidental handball by Wilmington led to a successful Tewksbury penalty kick, but Wilmington roared back to score two more goals. After a strong drive and shot by Tommy Casella was turned aside by Tewksbury, an alert Scott Fullerton pounced on the ball and scored his first goal of the season.

Some excellent passing by Doug Bonarrigo and Chris Kilburn broke free Bill Covino on the right wing, leading to Wilmington's final score.

Ninja Turtles vs Flames

David Trueira scored the only goal as the Flames nipped the Ninja Turtles 1-0 in a tight, well-played game. Robbie Nagel, Chris Van Asselberg and Tony Giamichael played very well to preserve the Flames' victory.

Robert Schell led the Ninja Turtle attack with solid help from David Johnson, Danny Alosco, Jason Youngclaus and Chris Styles.

Sunspots vs Meteors

The Meteors got goals from Matthew Wainor and Billy Murphy and shutout goalkeeping from Chuckie Osgood and Brian Martiniello in besting the Sunspots, 2-0.

Michael Gable, Colin Sheehan, Peter Reichel and Jason Loring all played well for the Meteors.

The Sunspots never gave up and received great games from David Graves, Brandon Courtois, Justin Brady, Adam Jensen and Brian Roberts.

Electric Grapes vs Rockets

Joseph Burns scored both goals as the Electric Grapes beat the Rockets, 2-0 in a hard fought game.

Ryan Oatis and Matthew Gennetti were unbeatable in goal for the Grapes, while Jeffrey Cannon and Stephen O'Dean played great games in the field.

Kyle Burns, Eric Herland and Michael Maleszyk played hard and well for the Rockets.

I drop by for a chat, there's a new emergency that I'm uniquely suited to solve, or a job that only I can do.

One week it's the pool cover that needs to be lifted off, another time there's a bee swarm on the chimney and a few weeks later the dog and the cat both have ticks. Lovely.

Why me? Where is my brother when these things need doing?

Last week, after visiting my wife at the hospital in Boston, I swung by to chat with Mom, bring her up to date on medical events, and sip a cold one.

When I pulled into the driveway,
Mom opened the door and asked if I could smell anything unusual. Gee, Mom, except for an over-whelming odor of skunk in the air, I'd have to say nothing much that I can detect, really. Why?

Skunk smell in New England isn't uncommon. There are skunks all over the place, every night, poking in trash cans and scavenging for a meal. They live under porches and sheds, quietly sleeping all day and coming out only at night. A skunk prefers eggs over other foods, and a skunk's nose is sensitive enough to detect even buried (i.e. turtle) eggs.

Didn't think a skunk would have a sensitive nose did you? They do.

Skunks have learned that humans don't bother them during the day, so they're active only on the graveyard shift. While you sleep, there are literally thousands of skunks,
'coons and 'possums scooting along in the suburbs. They aren't afraid of us. They rarely see us, in fact.

Once, I was sitting on the steps of a friend's apartment, about 1 a.m., just watching the stars roll by on a warm summer night. I saw motion out the corner of my left eye, and turned to watch.

A full-grown skunk was just then squeezing out of a fist-sized hole under the concrete patio slab at the apartment next door. I just sat still and watched as the critter ambled up, sniffed my toe, then staggered off in that wobbly walk peculiar to skunks. Maybe it saw me, or maybe not, but it didn't seem to matter. I wasn't a threat, so the skunk didn't care. Pretty little animals, really, with lovely black-and-white fur.

Of course, I didn't dare tell the neighbor that an adult skunk was living virtually under his feet while he watched TV at night. Maybe the skunk listened for the sound of the TV being shut off before starting on his nightly rounds, or maybe the skunk enjoyed listening to the tube.

Anyway, back to Mom's. When I stepped into the kitchen, I asked if Mom had been cooking with garlic, such as a few pounds of garlic. No.
Uh-oh. There was no classic "skunk smell" in the house, only an intense, overpowering garlic stench. So I leaned over and sniffed the dog.

Bingo!
Dahlia, the magical flying Frisbee dog, had been nailed by a skunk.

Oh lovely. Too late for me to get away, too late to say "Gee Ma, what are you going to do about this one?"
I'm stuck with the job.

Mom said that she was inside the house, and the dog was out on the wire run, sniffing around the trees at the back edge of the yard. (Dogs do that, you know.) Mom said she heard Dahlia bark, then yelp, and a smell of skunk filled the air. Game, set and match.

Skunks don't stink, for the most part. The one that sniffed my boot that evening on the apartment steps had no more smell than a house cat.
Instead, a skunk gives up its classic smell under two circumstances:

a) If pushed too far, a skunk uses its musk as a defensive weapon. It aims for the eyes, to temporarily blind an enemy, but most animals are smart enough to recognize it, so they leave it alone. Or,

b) Musk is released if the skunk meets a violent end, such as that offered by a Goodyear radial.

Skunks prefer not to do anything in their own defense. Just seeing a skunk is enough to scare away most predators. Their classic response to any threat is to turn and face the opponent, slap the dirt with their front feet, and hoist their tail straight up. If that threat fails, the skunk will then twist itself into a "U" shape, with head and tail facing the enemy. If that "final warning" still doesn't do it (in our case, since the dog didn't back off), SPRITZ!!! A teaspoon or so of musk is shot out of a musk gland near the base of the tail, and the opponent is then much smarter. A potent lesson.

In our case, Dahlia didn't know what a skunk was capable of doing. She does now. Aggressors learn to leave skunks alone, which is why skunk fur is boldly colored instead of being camouflaged. Skunks want predators to know them on sight.

So, I drove a stake into the dirt and tied Dahlia on a short rope, and poked around the kitchen for a can of tomato juice, which is a time-honored skunk solvent. We had no tomato juice, naturally, but we did have some V-8. Close enough.

Fourteen years ago, in the U.S. Air Force "Disaster Preparedness" school at Lowry Air Force Base in Colorado, Sgt. Bill Conlon learned the art of how to decontaminate equipment and men after surviving a chemical warfare attack.

Fourteen years later, that knowledge was finally put to good use.

With rubber gloves and a grim look, I proceeded to scrub the dog with V-8 juice. She didn't like it much but then, neither did I. I gave her a stem-to-stern scrub, followed by a soap-and-water scrubbing (the "universal" decontaminant is what we called hot soapy water during my Air Force days), and finished by hosing down the dog.

If the smell didn't teach Dahlia to leave skunks alone, the scrubbing in V-8, hot soapy water, and a hosing down on a cold September evening sure did. Dahlia was one humble little pooch after that.

However, the kitchen still smelled of skunk. Uh-oh! Before Mom was certain of the skunk attack, the dog was brought inside for just a minute. Dahlia must have rubbed up against something, such as table, chairs, cabinets. Terrific. The oily skunk musk, potent in very small amounts, was still present in the room.

I might have looked silly, but I crawled around the kitchen on all fours, sniffing at the cabinets and furniture, with a handful of paper towels and a bottle of spray cleaner, icing down the hotspots. The table cloth and kitchen towels were put in the washing machine, and I wiped out most of the contamination.

Two hours later, with just a whiff of skunk left in the kitchen, and on the dog, I finally headed for home.

Mom, do me a big favor next time something like this happens?

Call Kevin. He gets to handle the next emergency, okay?

— Tackle Box —

As noted, my better half is still on the mend, but at least she seems to be out of the deepest, darkest part of the woods. Thanks, everyone, for the support we've been given!

This Sunday, don't forget about Sportsmen's Family Rendezvous at Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club, at the Chandler Street grounds. The doors open at 10 a.m., with the shooting events starting at 1. Tickets are $5 in advance, $6 at the door. Looks like a busy day at TR&G, with tons of food, fun and things to do.

A bunch of TR&G regulars, most notably some of the firearms safety instructors, have attended the state Map & Compass course, held in Gardner. I'm pushing for the local guys to offer some type of Compass class at the club, even an informal one. We'll see. Stay tuned.

This might be worth a column in the near future, but I think I'll air it now. Roger Trembley of Lowell was charged with murder, after he allegedly shot and killed an intruder in his home. All in favor of letting Roger off the hook completely, say AYE! That's what I thought. Once upon a time, creepy-crawlers were afraid to break into decent people's houses, knowing that they might get shot. Now one has been shot, and see how an otherwise law-abiding gun owner is being raked over the coals.

Yellow Ribbons for Reading

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Many people have said "I am only one person, what can I do." Bill Simpson proved that one person with the right idea and the belief in that idea can get a whole town to back it.

Thus, Operation Yellow Ribbon was conceived. Because of this, Reading Square is covered from one end of Main Street to the other with yellow ribbons. These have been tied to the light poles so that people will remember the men and women from this community, including Simpson's son Andrew, who are now stationed throughout the Middle East and the Persian Gulf.

Simpson said that ribbons were just one way of giving the troops the support that was never given to the Viet Nam era veterans.

The idea spread and people now have little yellow ribbons tied to their cars and on the front of their homes.

According to Simpson, "More and more I am seeing yellow ribbons on businesses, private houses and cars around town. As time passes the people are getting personally related to the movement. I feel a personal kinship when I spot a ribbon."

Despite all the work he has contributed to the program's success, Simpson talks more about the help he has received from the business owners and residents of the community.

"It is a situation like this that makes one realize how interdependent we are on other people," he said.

Simpson first got the idea when he read about Athol native Corrine Davis, who started a similar operation in her town.

"I thought it was an idea that the town of Reading would support," Simpson said.

At the end of August, he brought the idea to the Daily Times Chronicle, where it was supported and where Editor Bruce Morang wrote about it. This generated more interest throughout the community.

Simpson then went to the business community, where he has received much of his support, especially from four local florists. "We contacted the florists,"

Simpson said. "They provided the designs and we provided the material."

Among these, he is especially thankful to Audrey Thompson and Cornelia Durham of Flower Pot originals, who donated the most finished ribbons to the project. Simpson also thanks Terri Pemberton, Michelle Bruno and Nancy Bruno of the Reading Shower of Flowers. "They weren't even opened yet, when we approached them," he said.

Judy Colbourne and Phyllis Vedder of Eric's Greenhouse and Garden Center and Josie of the Depot Flower Shop are also receiving kudos from Simpson for the hours they spent working on the well over 150 ribbons that adorn the town.

According to Simpson, the work on many of the ribbons was done at home on the workers own time.

To pay for the materials, Simpson approached Reading Cooperative Bank Senior Vice President T. Gerald Richards, who set up an account for donations to a fund.

Simpson said that the account received enough donations to pay for the materials, and their future maintenance. The small excess will be donated to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Bedford. He added that the account is still open for anyone that wishes to make a contribution.

Other businesses in the community have also made donations to Operation Yellow Ribbon, these include Fabric Town, who donated a number of small ribbons to distribution points at Town Hall, the Library, the local florists, the Daily Times Chronicle office and the local florists.

Morang said "Fabric Town gave us all the ribbon we could use (for the privately hung decorations)."

Two other important contributions were made by the Wayside Bazaar and the White Hen Pantry. Simpson said that Wayside provided all the string used to tie the ribbons to the light poles and that the White Hen provided the milk cartons for the volunteer workers to stand on as they tied the ribbons.

Showing concern

Simpson said that the volunteer workers were not hard to find. Most of them were parents of Armed Forces and Naval personnel that have been assigned as part of Operation Desert Shield.

The work crew included: Richard Fotino, whose son is Captain Robert Fotino, a navigator with the U.S. Air Force; William Hughes, whose son, William III, is with the First Marine Division; Dick Campbell, who has a son doing his training with the Marines; and, Simpson's other son David. Another worker was Ron D'Daddario who is an interested in doing something for the people overseas. He had become familiar with Simpson, while the two were proposing that the Daily Times Chronicle work to get residents of the town involved with the ribbons and a letter writing campaign.

Two of the Reading people in Saudi Arabia - Andrew Simpson and William Hughes - are veterans of Operation Just Cause, the Panamanian operation that toppled the government in that country.

Explaining why he feels the program is important Simpson said:

Separation or divorce is a stressful experience for many reasons. The psychiatric services department at New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH), Stoneham, is offering a program to assist adults in coping with the new situations they are encountering.

The "New Families" program for adults addresses issues concerning divorce, former spouses, money, custody, fighting, parenting and joint-custody parenting, new relationships, dating, remarriage and child guidance. Groups are either all-women or coed.

The ten-session program begins October 23 and meets on Tuesday evenings for 50 minutes. Prego interviews are now being conducted. The groups are covered by Medicaid, commercial insurance and many health maintenance organizations (HMOs).

For more information, or to register for "New Families," contact Alexandra Erickson at the NEMH Psychiatric Services Department, at (617) 979-7025.

Bruins, Celtic stars in Lynnfield

A star-studded list of professional athletes from the Boston Bruins and the Boston Celtics will gather at the Lynnfield High School gymnasium on Sunday evening, September 30, from 5 to 9 p.m. to highlight "Lynnfield Sportsfest '90."

The "Sportsfest" is an effort of the Lynnfield Athletic Association, a group of volunteer Lynnfield residents headed by president Steve Migliero, to raise money in order to maintain a strong and viable high school athletic program in the town of Lynnfield. Like many athletic programs across Massachusetts, Lynnfield has been hit hard by budget cutbacks due to the woeful financial condition of the State.

Popular Boston Bruins head coach Mike Milbury and Boston Celtics new head coach Chris Ford, both concerned Lynnfield residents themselves, have assumed leadership roles in arranging plans for an exciting evening.

Coach Milbury has commitments from several stars from his Stanley Cup finalist Bruins team including Raymond Bourque, Cam Neely, Andy Moog, Glen Wesley, Bob Carpenter, Dave Christian and assistant coach Gord Clark.

Coach Ford has also committed a group of his players including Kevin McHale, Joe Kleine, Ed Pickney and several other Celtics stars who will be in the Boston area early for training camp.

Steve Migliero announced several activities already lined up which include:

- Fantasy Video Booth: where booster fans can "score the winning goal of a Bruins game" and be video-taped in a post game interview with Coach Milbury.
- Shoot Baskets with Kevin

McHale: fans can go to the line, or "stop and pop" with the 6'11" Celtics great under the hoop.

- Photo T-shirt Booth: where Lynnfield supporters can take a picture with their favorite Bruins or Celtics player and have the picture scanned instantly on to a t-shirt via the marvel of a computerized system.
- Raffle Booth: From which a long list of impressive items will be raffled off during the evening.
- Polaroid Photo Booth: Where Bruins and Celtics fans can get an instant autographed photo taken with their favorite player!

Food and beverages will be available for a moderate price including soft drinks from the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of New England, hot dogs from Old Neighborhood Meats of Lynn, chips from The Boston Potato Chip Co. of Boston's North End, ice cream from International Ice Cream of Charlestown and much more.

Admission is $3 and all proceeds will go to the Lynnfield Athletic Association's school programs.

on the basis of ability to pay. Those people with little or no health insurance or omitted means will not be refused services. EMHS provided humane care to over 3,500 people last year. About the Towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

STONEHAM - As of last week, the Stoneham Board of Health has taken state non-smoking regulations one step further requiring non-smoking sections in restaurants with 50 or more seats rather than the state-mandated 75.

According to the new regs', any person who smokes in a non-smoking area after notice from the person in charge will be subject to a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50; and any business owner who fails to comply with any provision of the regulation will be subject to a fine of not less than $20 nor more than $100.

Unless otherwise approved, non-smoking areas must be integral, not located between two smoking areas; and comprise no less than 25 percent of a restaurant's seating capacity.

The regulation affects most Stoneham eating establishments, with the exception of a few small coffee shops.

WINCHESTER - Winchester resident Chet Haskell is the new associate dean for degree programs at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government.

As dean, he will oversee student affairs and services, work with faculty to refine curriculum, manage administrative and financial budgets, and direct degree program operations.

His previous experience includes directing the public management training component of the National Center for Urban Ethnic Affairs in Washington, DC and developing legal and legislative training programs for the U.S. Civil Service Commission.

WOBURN - The largest contract the Electronic Systems Division at Hanscom Air Force Base has ever awarded to a firm which is designated a "small business" recently went to Infotec Development Corporation in Woburn's Cummings Park.

Worth up to $397 million, the contract will enhance the Networking Capabilities Program which will perform a variety of computer-related services for the Defense Department, eventually pulling all intelligence activities under one roof.

The minority-owned Infotec will perform site work at up to 75 intelligence centers around the world, including surveys, preparation, installations, maintenance, and products to support site installations.

READING - On Friday evening, October 19th, Reading resident and retired Melrose Assistant Superintendent Bob Bachelder and his Totem Pole Orchestra will return to the Totem Pole.

So to speak. Billed as "Return to the Totem Pole," the evening is being presented as part of the Brookline Adult and Community Education Program in conjunction with Longwood Towers, and pre-registration is required.

Return to the Totem Pole is course number M700.

Bachelder's band, which includes 10 members of the original Totem Pole orchestra, recently drew more than 400 people to a "Touch of Class" concert in Reading's Memorial Park.

ROVING

of him, and that she seemed to like him very much. David was flattered, and said so, but he urged Pauline's mother to get to the point.

"There is something you don't know about Pauline," her mother said. The sound of her voice was solemn, and she seemed to be having difficulty breathing, sounding like a heavy smoker gently gasping for breath after ascending a small flight of stairs. She continued, "On the surface, Pauline seems very normal. Well, as normal as a young divorced woman with three children can be. But beneath that facade is a Pauline you don't know."

"Mrs. McCrimmon, please tell me what is going on," David implored.

"Pauline has a drinking and drug problem. Have you ever heard of an intervention?"

"No, I can't say that I have."

"Well, it's when a group of loved ones intervene in the life of another loved one, a person who is, for all intent and purposes, beyond help, and they force that person to go for help. Tonight, Pauline's father, sister, ex-husband and I, with the help of a therapist who specializes in alcohol and drug addictions, performed an intervention on Pauline's life. We showed up at her work, and we took her away for help."

"Took her away?" David repeated. "Took her away to where?"

"She's at a place called Conifer Park, in upstate New York," her mother said. "She'll be there for thirty days. There's something else you should know: This isn't the first time Pauline's been confined to a detox center. Last year she spent a month at Spafford Hall, in New Hampshire. It obviously didn't do her any good, because she's still drinking and taking drugs. There's so much you don't know, David. You've just met Pauline. You sound like you care about her, and I know she cares about you. But you've got to know what you're facing, if you choose to see her and talk to her again. It won't be easy. She's a troubled girl."

"What has become of the kids?" David asked.

"They are with their father, Pauline's ex-husband." There was a pause, then she added: "Pauline might try to get in touch with you. I don't know. She may even write to you. All I can say is be careful. Don't let yourself get hurt. I've seen Pauline hurt other men. I wouldn't want to see that happen to you."

David struggled to digest the shocking information he had been dealt. He thanked Pauline's mother for being frank, and hung up.

The next morning, to David's surprise, he received a collect phone call from Pauline. She sounded depressed, until David informed her that he had spoken with her mother and reassured her that there was nothing to be afraid of. He wasn't about to hang the receiver up on her and never speak to her again. This relaxed Pauline, and she gradually opened up to tell her side of what had happened the night before.

"I was at work, on the floor, waiting on tables," she explained, "when suddenly the manager came up to me. He said that my mother wanted to talk to me. I met her in the lobby, and before I had a chance to open my mouth, I was surrounded by my parents and my ex-husband. I was put in a car and driven away. Driven away to Conifer Park, in New York! I didn't even have a say in the matter. Obviously, you must know by now that things haven't been 'normal' in my life."

"Your mother explained the whole story to me," David said. "She told me all about your drinking and drug problem. Pauline, I was shocked. I never would have guessed that."

"Not everything she told you is exactly the truth," Pauline interrupted. "Things are not as bad as my mother made them out to be. I don't really have a drinking problem, and I don't do drugs. Well, not anymore, anyway."

"Then why are you in Conifer Park right now?"

"I know it doesn't look good," she went on, "but I'm telling you the truth. I used to have a problem with cocaine. For a while my life was out of order. But I was in the middle of getting things back on track. Until last night, that is. My father and mother and my ex-husband think my life is still a wreck, that I'm still on drugs. And that simply isn't true."

"Your ex-husband has the kids right now."

"I know. And I'm going to lose my apartment, also. The reason I went along with them is because I want to assure them that I am O.K., and because I want to be able to get my kids back when I get back home. That's the only reason I'm letting them do this to me."

David wanted to question Pauline about her stay at Spafford Hall, but decided against it. He felt overwhelmed with the sudden revelation that Pauline's life was not as serene as he had first envisioned. He thought about telling her that he could not deal with her problems, then decided against that, also. For some unexplainable reason, he wanted to try to help her. He actually believed that, with his support, Pauline would return home in thirty days, and they would be able to resume their fledgling relationship.

"When my husband and I broke up, he was cheating on me," Pauline continued. "He put us in debt, we lost the house and car, and he left me with the custody of three kids. I lost it for a while. I got mixed up with the wrong people, and tried to escape. But I'm not in that world anymore. I was doing fine. I had an apartment, I was working, and the kids were happy again. I was happy again."

"If that were completely true, then you wouldn't be at Conifer Park, Pauline," David's voice conveyed skepticism, and that angered Pauline.

"Look, don't believe me then," she snapped. "My parents think I'm still involved with drugs. I told you that. They think my life is still a mess. But it isn't. And now that I've met you, I really think things are going to stay on the right track."

David wanted desperately to believe every word Pauline said. His heart told him, yes, have faith in this woman you've just met, a woman who needs your help right now. His mind flashed red, warning him that there may still be more to this scenario than met the eye. For the time being, he decided, he'd go with his heart.

"Call me collect anytime," he said. "I'll be here when you return home."

Pauline called every couple of days. She also wrote letters, which arrived at David's house almost daily. They were mostly romantic letters, but on occasion, they seemed to convey the boredom and frustration that Pauline was experiencing. One letter, toward the end of her stay at Conifer Park, expressed how desperate she was to return home. She had been speaking daily with a counselor, eating well and working out to remain in shape, yet she still felt deeply depressed. Depressed mostly because of her longing to see her children, and because she wanted to see David again. A few days before she was scheduled to be released, she telephoned David to tell him her plans.

"My aunt has offered to let me stay with her, till I get back on my feet," she said. Her voice reflected melancholy, lackluster spirit. David asked her what was wrong.

"Now that I don't have the apartment, I don't have any place to put the kids," she told him. "They're going to stay with my ex-husband and his new wife."

This obviously bothered Pauline. David attempted to comfort her, assuring her that as soon as she got back to work she'd be able to get another large apartment for herself and the three children.

"Except I don't have a job to go back to," she interjected. "My father can be thanked for that. He told my boss all about my so-called drug problem, and now he doesn't want me working there. I'm going home to no kids, no apartment, and no job. I don't understand this. Just a month ago, I had everything in control. Now it seems like everything is in a state of chaos."

"Relax," said David. "You can find another waitress job with no trouble at all."

There was a long pause on the other end of the line. "I hope you're right," she said, finally. "I hope you're right."

David saw Pauline the following week, on the day she returned home and moved into her aunt's house, which was located in Pauline's home town, just blocks from where she had been living before her family's intervention. Both her parents and her ex-husband lived just minutes from Pauline. She had been in her aunt's house for just hours, and David sensed that she was already unhappy about her living arrangement.

"I miss my kids," she told David. "They're telling me that I won't get them back unless I attend AA meetings and continue to see a counselor. They're convinced that I still have a problem with drugs, and I don't! And I don't feel as though I've got a drinking problem. I don't need to go to AA meetings."

David had not known Pauline long enough to know how much of what Pauline said was truth. For all he knew, she could very well not have a drinking problem, and her former drug problem, which she admitted once having, was a thing of the past. He wanted to believe her; still, the tiny red light revolved inside his head.

"Well," he said, "what are you planning to do?"

"What can I do? I've got to convince everybody that they're wrong, that I deserve to have my kids back."

"The first thing you'll have to do is find a job, so that you can eventually afford an apartment in

OPPORTUNITIES WITH HOSPICE CARE

A variety of meaningful volunteer opportunities are now available for Woburn residents at Hospice Care, Inc. Hospice Care is a non-profit agency providing physical care and emotional support to terminally ill patients and their families at home in Woburn and surrounding communities.

At the present time about 50 volunteers share their time and talents at Hospice Care. Most are Hospice Support Workers who work directly with patients and families providing friendly visiting and support during the illness and the bereavement period.

Hospice Care plans a training program soon to prepare additional men and women for their chance to join the hospice interdisciplinary team. The main qualifications to become a Hospice Support Worker are a sensitive concern for people, a willingness to be helpful and flexible and a commitment to the hospice philosophy.

In addition, Hospice Care has developed a pool of other volunteers who contribute their skills and time. Specifically, volunteer nurses, home health aides, hairdressers, homemakers, drivers, social workers, artists or craftsmen and office workers would all be most helpful to the hospice program.

If you are interested in a unique opportunity to help others and to experience personal satisfaction and self growth, consider volunteering for Hospice Care. For more information, call Judy Zabin, Volunteer Coordinator, at (617) 648-3172.

EXPERT ON ADVERTISING AND ALCOHOL ABUSE

Media critic and award-winning lecturer Jean Kilbourne will present her nationally acclaimed slide lecture "Under the Influence - the Pushing of Alcohol via Advertising" at Middlesex Community College's Burlington Campus on Monday, October 1. The program will be given in the auditorium, starting at 11:30 a.m. It is open to the public free of charge. Sponsored by the Health Services and Student Activities offices, the presentation is the college's first event this year in its observation of National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week (Oct. 15-20).

Kilbourne's penetrating analysis of advertising's cumulative impact illustrates the powerful effects of media messages on values and behavior in American society. "Under the Influence" scrutinizes the way advertising links alcohol with happiness, prestige, virility and athletic ability, while distracting public attention from the damaging potential of alcohol abuse. Her focus is on prevention, education and public policy, and deals with issues of alcoholism, young people, women, minorities and children of alcoholics.

Jean Kilbourne's appearance at Middlesex last spring drew a capacity audience for the slidelecture "The Naked Truth," an examination of advertising's images of women. For directions to the Burlington Campus on Terrace Hall Avenue, call (617) 272-7342, Ext. 3027 or (508) 937-5454, Ext. 6661 or Ext. 8395.

TEN FREE TREES FROM FOUNDATION

Ten tree trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during September, 1990.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundations's Trees for America campaign.

The ten trees are the Sugar Maple, White Flowering Dogwood, Pin Oak, White Pine, Red Maple, Birch, American Redbud, Silver Maple, Red Oak and Colorado Blue Spruce.

"These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors and winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds," John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director, said.

The trees will be shipped post-paid at the right time for planting between October 15 and December 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, Nebraska 68410, by September 30.

AUDUBON ANNUAL BIRDSEED SALE

Winter bird feeding is a hobby which delights the observer and provides a welcome resource for foraging winter resident birds.

To prepare for the coming season, Massachusetts Audubon has announced the dates of its annual Society-wide birdseed sale. Orders are due to sanctuaries by Friday, October 5 and pick up day will be Saturday, November 3, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dave Adams

'I've been a Scout all my life'

The Minuteman Council's new Scout Executive, Dave Adams, proudly proclaims that "I've been a Scout all my life."

Replacing Ronald Rogers in the Stoneham office, Adams has acquired his Scouting acumen in the various positions he has held throughout Pennsylvania and Upstate New York.

Recognizing that Scouting in the 1990s has changed considerably "since I was a boy," Adams feels that "the reason a boy still becomes a Boy Scout is to go camping."

Scouting, he went on, "still has a lot to do with the outdoors." Which is precisely why "I first became active in Scouting. I've been an outdoorsman all my life; first as a Scout, then as a volunteer and a Scoutmaster and now as a professional."

Born in the Lehigh Valley area of Pennsylvania, a graduate of Westchester University with a Bachelor's Degree in Music, Adams explained that "Scouting meant a lot to me as a boy," and as he became more involved, "I decided to see if there were any career opportunities in Scouting."

Many winter birds are attracted to backyard bird feeders and now is the time to stock up on seed for the coming season. Birds that remain in the area often search for dependable food supplies and return to the same feeders each year. If the source is not reliable, the birds have to forage for their winter diet.

Massachusetts Audubon offers special blends of seeds and grains formulated to attract a wide spectrum of feathered friends to your feeder. The sale is a great way to prepare for the annual Bird Feeder Survey, conducted by the Society in February as an annual census of the wintering birds throughout the state.

The Society's special blend of birdseed, with a little something for all birds, contains nutritional sunflower, cracked corn, white millet and peanut hearts rather than red millet or wheat which may look good to humans, but which are not nutritional for birds. Also for sale are thistle seed, a special favorite of finches, cracked corn which will bring pheasants, doves and sparrows to your feeder and a sunflower blend for chickadees, titmice, nuthatches, mockingbirds, grosbeaks, cardinals, juncos and finches.

Order forms are available at any Massachusetts Audubon Sanctuary or can be obtained by calling (617) 259-9500, Ext. 7601. Proceeds from the sale are used to develop new educational materials and improve the Society's environmental programs.

PARTICIPANTS NEEDED FOR SLEEP STUDY

Sleep. It comes easily for some while others lay waiting. If you fit into either category, you may be eligible to participate in a 12-week Sleep Study sponsored by the New England Deaconess Hospital Section on Behavioral Medicine.

Researchers will compare the sleep patterns of sound sleepers and insomniacs. Participants must be between the ages of 25 and 49, and require more than one hour or less than 15 minutes to fall asleep. All participants earn $175 and those suffering from insomnia will learn behavioral techniques to manage their sleep problems.

For more information, contact the Section on Behavioral Medicine at (617) 732-9530 weekdays.

Prior to coming to the Minuteman Council, Adams had served as the Scout Executive in Williamsport, Pennsylvania for a council that encompassed five counties. Prior to that, he had worked in various capacities in Syracuse, New York; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and the Lehigh Valley.

Adams, although he began his tenure at the Minuteman Council on September 1, is hardly a stranger to New England. His father was born in Boston and he has relatives in Maine. Remembering how he had always enjoyed New England as a boy, he hoped that someday he could live and work "here."

As the Scout Executive for the Minuteman Council, he now oversees the activities of 10,000 scouts and 4,000 volunteers. Also, the Minuteman Council owns four camps; three of which are currently in operation.

Starting "on the ground floor and working my way up," Adams has had ample opportunity to see what Scouting means to young boys in the latter half of the 20th century.

To begin with, he said, "I suppose in some ways Scouting has changed. Certainly today, kids seem to grow up faster. Camping for boys at a much younger age seems to be very prevalent. We camp our Cub Scouts at eight years of age, and when I was a Scout, you didn't go camping until you were 11."

Also, given the high-tech environment "that all of us have to contend with, there is a greater emphasis on computers. We've had to update our Merit Badge

SCOUTS TO S-8

School Notes

by phyllis nissen

—For the first time ever, all North Reading students in grades 7-12 are being charged a $20 extra-curricular activities fee which will cover such activities as drama and music.

As a result of the total teaching staff's being reduced by 20 positions, one ability level has been eliminated at the junior high, except for math. Three ability levels are still being offered but the fourth, for lower achieving students, is no more - because of staffing shortages.

More students in the third level mean larger classes and labs as well as some textbook shortages.

—After a long tradition of junior and senior highs, Winchester has made, according to Superintendent Dr. Charles Mitsakos, a "historical" change. With two-thirds of its students new to the school, the McCall Middle School is on line and ready to make history.

Also new in Winchester is a scheduling change at the high school where students are now attending classes based on a seven-day schedule, resulting in longer class periods and a break from each class once every seven days.

—Reading High seniors Dana Bryant, Susan Coco and Kathleen Kieran have been named semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Competition, joining some 15,000 other semifinalists nationwide.

Bryant, Coco and Kieran were chosen because of their performances on last fall's Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test.

—Just before school began, the Woburn School Committee hired back all non-tenured Woburn teachers - including one whose position had been eliminated earlier in the year.

However, according to Mayor John Rabbitt in the Woburn Daily Times Chronicle, the School Department must cut $250,000 from its $22.2 million budget.

Therefore, those 51 teachers have already been warned that if the city runs out of money midway through the school year, they'll be the first to go.

—Budget cuts over the past two years, mean that Stoneham's traffic directors have been cut from 24 to 13 - and when the location of those 13 was not quite determined before the opening of school, Stoneham Police Chief Eugene Passaro asked parents to volunteer to walk children to and from school, for the first week anyway.

Passaro asked neighborhoods to designate "block parents" to take turns each day walking the children to school.

"During these times," says Passaro in the Stoneham Independent, "the parents have to take some responsibility."

MOVIES

"Narrow Margin" and "Hardware"

by Rochelle Flynn

"Narrow Margin" Starring Gene Hackman, Anne Archer. Written and directed by Peter Hyams. Produced by Jonathan A. Zimbert. Rated R.

Gene Hackman is one of those actors who can make all the difference in the world to a movie that is teetering on the brink of mediocrity. In the case of "Narrow Margin," he is the one asset that makes this flick rise above a trite plot.

Hackman plays a Los Angeles District Attorney who is determined to reign in Carol (Anne Archer), a woman with the worst blind date story in the 20th century. Unlucky Carol got to watch as an infamous gangster iced her date. Panicking, she runs north for the border. Hackman's Robert Caulfield, smarter than most of the cops around him, heads after her.

The rest of the film revolves around Hackman trying to bring Archer back from the Canadian wilderness so she can testify in LA, whether she wants to or not. The bad guys, of course, have no difficulty finding her and attempt to blow the two of them to bits. Hackman and Archer seek refuge on a grain, with the bad guys boarding just behind them.

While Archer does her best with a limiting role, it is Hackman who brings subtle humor and much needed warmth to a role that could have been gruntingly basic. He's much better at playing mind games than the mob hit men, who are all rather two dimensional. Well, James B. Sikking is a notch above the others, as Sikking leaves us with the impression that his character enjoys this warped game of cat and mouse.

There's no denying that the plot is on the tired side, but director Peter Hyams manages to scare up quite a bit of suspense. True, you can spot the red herrings almost immediately, but the film hangs onto a sense of urgency. Another plus is the Canadian scenery. Most of the action is set against a rough, autumnal terrain that helps to open up the claustrophobic setting within the train.

"Hardware" Starring Dylan McDermott, Stacey Travis, John Lynch. Written and directed by Richard Stanley. Produced by Joanne Sellar, Paul Trybits. Rated R.

You have to wonder if anyone actually saw this flick before they booked it. Awkward and ugly, "Hardware," is set up as a "cautionary futuristic thriller" in which writer/director Richard Stanley cribbs from several sources, among them science fiction and grade Z monster movies. This tired plot is further undermined by cheapo sets and murky production values.

Most of the story is set inside a decaying apartment building-cum-bunker, where metal artist Jill (Stacey Travis) welds strange sculpture. When boyfriend Moe (Dylan McDermott) brings his main squeeze a bag of junk from "The Zone," she adds the head of a droid to a work in progress. The droid, which is not actually dead, turns out to be a model discontinued by the government, as it's killer instincts just won't quit. Naturally, it goes on a rampage.

There are several reasons why this flick isn't even worth the cost of the film it was shot on. For one thing, it includes several nasty scenes of a peeping Tom babbling extremely graphic obscenities while watching a naked woman. These scenes are meant to shock, but merely disgust.

The inane and mean-spirited plot is padded with psychedelic and surreal filler which adds nothing but shoddiness. And finally, all the red and black spray paint in the world will never cover up an amateurish set or convince an audience they are looking at a post-apocalyptic world. That would take a little imagination and creativity, commodities not to be found in this film.

Post Cards from the Edge has a tough, sassy veneer over a milk chocolate heart. Meryl Streep has never been more accessible than as this drug addict actress trying to get on the straight and narrow while dodging the obstacles thrown by Hollywood and her nutty mom. Shirley MacLaine sparkles as the mother, an eccentric egomaniac who really does love her daughter. Based on Carrie Fisher's novel, which is widely assumed to be autobiographical. Rated R.  1/2

Metropolitan is a subtle, witty love story that satirizes the "doomed" elite of Manhattan. The focus is a group of guys and gals making the round of parties and balls during Christmas week, that time of year when debutantes are on the prowl. Director/writer Whit Stillman assumes his audience is both literate and intelligent as he delicately balances humor against the insecurities of his characters. The result is a touching and witty film. Rated PG-13.  1/2

Death Warrant is an ugly picture starring Jean-Claude Van Damme as a cop who goes undercover to root out a serial killer in a prison. The violence is gratuitous, the acting abysmal and the plot so full of holes it is practically surreal. Rated R. *

My Blue Heaven is a one joke movie, but the cast pretty much makes that joke work. Steve Martin plays a mafioso who enters the witness protection program under the guidance of federal agent Rick Moranis. It's all a bit much, everyone except Moranis is over the top, but it's breezy enough to keep your interest. Rated PG-13. **

Funny About Love is a comedy/drama that never quite balances the two genres, but is surprisingly entertaining, nonetheless. Gene Wilder, in his best performance in years, plays a man who just refuses to grow up, with Christine Lahti and Mary Stuart Masterson as the women he charms. Nothing slapstick here, the subject matter is thoughtful and intelligent, but director Leonard Nimoy can't keep the dramatic scenes from dragging. Still, a noble effort. Rated PG-13.  1/2

Darkman is pulsating, loud, daring, funny and frenzied. It has the heart of a 1950's science fiction adventure encased in the technological body of the Nineties. Writer/director Sam Raimi has taken this story of a disfigured scientist past the boundaries of conventional cinema as Liam Neeson's and scientist plays at Beauty and the Beast before becoming the Phantom of the Opera. Great, sweeping fun - just leave your brains at the door. Rated R. ***

ROBERT CAULFIELD (GENE HACKMAN), a deputy district attorney from Los Angeles, and murder witness Carol Hunnicut (Anne Archer) cling to the roof of a speeding train that cuts through the Canadian wilderness as they try to elude hired killers in "Narrow Margin," a Tri-Star Pictures release from Carolco.

ANTHONY MANCONI

The reason happiness is not found on a cruise, at a resort or in a mountain retreat is because wherever we go, we must take ourselves with us and that sometimes can spoil the whole thing. Happiness is really a state of mind, a by-product of creative activity. It can only be achieved or attained by helping or reaching out to embrace and console not only a personal friend but anyone in need. One does not find happiness by sailing to Bermuda, flying to Las Vegas or spending two weeks in the Catskills. It must be created and there's only one person who can do that for you - "YOU."

I never knew what real happiness was until I got married - but it was too late. After a long-winded sermon my Aunt Nora said, "Father John, your homily was like water to a drowning man." Ballroom dancing is coming back and I couldn't be happier. Young men will start shaving regularly and those dungarees will be worn on a farm where they belong. Young women will dress like ladies and if a little more respect for themselves and others comes out of this new trend, I'll be the first to shout Hallelujah!

"Stay away from the dancing halls, the people there are no good at all, that's where I met your father Bridget darling." Those are words from a popular from a popular song years ago. It was meant to be funny but the words were certainly not true, for the finest people I know have been or still are ballroom dancers. Some of them can still glide across the floor with the agility and smoothness of years ago. So, strike up the band, many of us are eager and ready to go dancing tonight.

Fr. John said, "I hope you will make this an Irish collection - all green!" Personality Winners: Lori Bellino, Kevin Buckley, John Gardiner, Michael Hazzard, Diane Hurley, Dr. Rajesh Jain, Ellen McAllister, Lisa Megna, Thomas O'Brien and Rachel Ucci, all of Woburn; Michael Abrams, Christopher Aronson, Michael Donaghey, Allen Doumit, Denise Finneman, Eric Ewald, Russell Hunter, Therese Krajewski, Guy Lake, Scott Landry, Shelagh Murray, C. Elizabeth Nuboer, Caroline Reich and Stephanie Smith, all of Winchester; Patrick Brennan, Matthew Buckley, Carolyn Conrad, Kevin Malenchini, Jean McCarthy, John Spizzucco, Leanne Salvatore, Karen Taylor and Viki Vitukevich, all of Wakefield; Carolyn Whiting, Rita Johnson, Sally Sabo, Daniel Beaulieu, Jennifer Boucher, Matthew Burne, Robert Cassesso, Susan Curry, Christine Dumas, Kevin Finnegan, Jennifer Foley, Monica Gacia, Gail Girasella and William Hewitt Jr., all of Reading; Elizabeth Clark, John Cox, Paul Ganshirt, Gary Gengo, Laura Gulla, Lisa Hatt, Scott Mabel, Paul Mulligan, Cheryl Stubbs, Robert Surabian, Kimberly Tyler and Jessica Willis, all of Burlington; Jay H. Arthur, Jeffrey Russo Coughlin and David Scott Place, Katherin Barr, Pam Oliver, Barbara Maxwell, Karen Vitale and Librarian Miriam Allen, all of North Reading; Muriel Smallcomb, Barbara Gould, Eleanor DePasquale, Lois Stone and Jeanne Craigie, all of Stoneham; Arthur Smith, Noel D. Baratta, James Ring, Ed Sargent, Delores Silva, William and Terry Hanlon and five-year old Annie Hanlon, all of Wilmington; Paul H. Sullivan, Capt. Larz Neilson, Suzie Johnson and Cynthia McGill, all of Tewksbury; Metro Police Lt. Robert MacDonald, Fr. Gerry Gillespie, Officers Tom Rourke and Jim Mahoney, all of Lynnfield; Marie Copp, Mary Sexton, Patricia Sheridan, Richard Wallace and Ralph Racine, all of Melrose.

Late one evening, Bob Giguere answered his door-bell. It was Larry Flynn who said, "Bob, would you like to contribute $10 to help the old ladies' home?" "Good grief!" Bob exclaimed, "What the heck are they doing out this late at night?" Kathy and I were invited to my Aunt Nora's 85th birthday party. Kathy said to me, "Do you think there will be a candle on the birthday cake for each of her 85 years?" "Now look here!" I shouted, "we are going to a birthday party not a torchlight parade!"

Folks, a vegetable garden is a thing of beauty and a job forever! Progress? Who said so? Every year it takes less time to fly across the Atlantic and more time to drive home from the airport. Have you noticed that gardeners who have green thumbs invariably have brown knees? I drove up to New Hampshire last week with Kathy. It was a 75 mile argument all the way up and all the way back. I didn't help matters much when I noticed a mule grazing in a field and I asked Kathy, "One of your relatives?" "Yes," she replied as she jabbed me in the ribs with her finger, "by marriage!" The workday for many men and women from the Middlesex East Area starts at sunset at the New England Produce Center in Chelsea. That's when the massive trailer trucks begin pulling in with fruit and produce from California, the midwest and Florida. From then on the work is non-stop until noon of the next day. Crews of "lumpers" unload the trailers into individual company depots. Sales persons prepare samples as store owners and super market buyers come in about midnight. From that time on it's sheer bedlam as their trucks back into the platforms to load up and get the fruit and produce to their respective stores.

Some of the Woodchip's fans who either own businesses or work there are Armando Sarno and Son from Woburn and their star salesman, Donald Lee of Tewksbury; Donald and Diane Bicchieri of Medford with Richard Testa and Harvey Alto as salesmen; Mario Cutone Co. with Gus and Pat Strangio of North Reading; Marco Tomato Co. with Philip DiNapoli and son Ralph of Reading; Arthur Silk Co. managed by Robert and Jason Silk with Joseph Aloisi one of the salesmen; D'Arrigo Brothers Co. "Andy Boy" Produce with Peter Jr., Steven and David D'Arrigo. I thank them and others who are readers of the Middlesex East Supplement.

Two farmers had identical size farms across a country road from each other. Their one and only crop was corn. The similarity ended there because in Farmer Brown's driveway a new pickup truck and a Mercedes Benz were parked. Farmer Jones had a five-year old truck and a three-year old Chevy parked in his driveway. "How is it?" Farmer Jones asked, "that we grow the same crop - corn - but you seem to be prosperous and I can hardly make ends meet?" Farmer Brown smiled and said, "The secret is this, you sell your corn dry while I sell mine in liquid form." I'll drink to that, folks.

After hoisting a few, I couldn't help myself, I belched. "How dare you belch before my wife," exclaimed Ray Giguere. "I'm sorry, sir," I apologized, "I didn't know it was your wife's turn to belch!"

My friend Mario DiMino is really cheap. He waited until he met a girl whose birthday is February 29th and married her so that he doesn't have to buy her a birthday present every year. MDC Capt. Dan Gately to Wayne Higden, "If you insist on playing that saxophone at 2 in the morning, you'll have to accompany me." "Certainly Sir, what song do you want to sing?"

Yellow Ribbons for Reading

said, "I know of many Reading kids who are in the Marine Corps and the Army and may be shipped over."

Simpson read from a letter he recently received from his son, who will miss Christmas at home for the third year. Andrew wrote, "I do appreciate the gesture and so do my buddies."

Simpson said that his son has just turned 21 and is a graduate of the Reading Memorial High School, Class of 1987.

The father, who did not serve in the Armed Forces, remembers that Andrew wanted to see combat. "Once he saw it (in Panama), he saw enough of it," Simpson said.

Reading and Athol are not the only communities to have such a program. Simpson said that he has heard of a number of western Massachusetts communities that have done something similar. He also noted that Halifax, Nova Scotia has bedecked their piers with yellow ribbons, as a reminder of the three Canadian Naval vessels that have been sent to the Persian Gulf.

In this area, North Reading has placed yellow ribbons on the Town Common and the North Reading Transcript is printing pictures and addresses of the people from that community that are serving in the Middle East, as well as sending them a free copy of the paper.

Transcript Publisher Albert Sylvia, Sr. said "At the end of next month the paper will start a drive to send Christmas cards."

which to put the kids once you get them back."

Pauline chuckled. "This is true," she said.

Pauline found a job as a hostess at a nearby restaurant and she continued to see David. Pauline's aunt turned out to be a friendly, middle-aged woman who had lost her husband to cancer and who wanted to have trustworthy company around the house. She allowed David to spend weekend nights there with Pauline, and each morning her aunt happily prepared coffee and breakfast for the three of them. Except for the occasional spell of loneliness that Pauline felt for her children, everything seemed to be going well in Pauline's life. This pleased everybody concerned about Pauline, particularly David. Then came the third Saturday night in August, when the first step in the nightmare portion of his and Pauline's relationship unfolded...

(End of Part Two)

As to the Daily Times Chronicle involvement, Morang said that it is all part of the paper's commitment to the community.

"It's one of the important roles a community newspaper has," said Morang. "We have to respond to the times in which we live. We have to respond to the people. The newspaper that doesn't isn't worth the paper it is printed on."

Morang also remembered the Viet Nam era and called it "...a sad period in this town."

He recalled that as the townspeople were divided over the merits of the war, 11 people were killed fighting it.

As to the participation by the other businesses in Reading, Morang said, "These local business people are just fantastic. You say what you need and they will come through for you."

Simpson said that the campaign will continue as long as American forces are in the Middle East.

"We pledged to the (Reading Municipal) Light Department, that if the ribbons got weather beaten, we would replace them," he said.

However, Simpson noted that some ribbons that have fallen from the poles have been put in other locations by caring citizens of the community.

He also said that anyone wishing to contribute to a financial gift to the Veterans Hospital may do so by a donation to the fund.

Send your donation to: Mr. Richards, Reading Cooperative Bank, 180 Haven St., Reading, 01867.

never will, he emphasized, is that Scouting still concentrates on "character and citizenship and physical and mental fitness."

The boys, he said, "still want to have fun, but we hope that we can - during the course of that fun - impart character and a sense of responsibility that will make each Scout a better adult. If we can do that, we've been successful."

Thus, Adams sees a "great future" for Scouting in the 1990s because "people are getting back to the basic values that this country was founded on, and that's a good thing."

For his part, Adams hopes to continue the growth "that the Minuteman Council has experienced during the past five years. There's a lot we can do in terms of career exploration, for single parent families and in helping society as a whole cope with the problem of drug abuse."

In other words, Adams concluded, "Scouting is what it's always been, only now, it's a little bit more; and that's the little bit more. I see a bright future for Scouting because we've maintained our basic values, but we've been able to encompass the multitude of changes that have occurred in our society. Scouting always has been and always will be a rewarding experience for any youngster."

Quannapowitt Players holds benefit performance

Handicap and retardation are two very frightening words, even in the '90s. Sad but true. And the people to whom those words refer bear the burden of that fear, whether they deserve it or not!

Quannapowitt Players hope to dispel these fears, and raise much-needed money, with a special performance planned for Thursday, October 4 at 8 p.m. at their Reading playhouse.

"The Boys Next Door," written by Tom Griffin, is a "tender, sensitive comedy which focuses on abilities, not disabilities, and which unlocks the door to human compassion and understanding using laughter as the key."

In her debut as a director, Nancy Curran says that this play is definitely a challenge, but one she desperately wanted to try. "Even as an actress, I don't think I've ever been so emotionally involved as I am with this play. These are my boys. This is my group home. I feel like I'm running it. I cry a lot, there are moments they just sweep me away!"

The preparation for this performance, Nancy said, went far beyond the usual script reading and rehearsing. In order to get a true feel for what life is like in a group home, Nancy insisted that each member of the cast visit a group home in the area. She noted that they were all somewhat skeptical of her assignment, but they went. Curran says that to her delight, the company enjoyed the group home visits and each actor gained a clearer understanding for the characters in the play.

Curran and her cast have the benefit of an experienced advisor on their crew. Diana Lopilato of Melrose, is a thirty-year-old group home resident. She attends every rehearsal and said that watching the actors "is scary, they're just like the people I live with, they look like them, they act like them."

Dianna said that she hope people will learn something from "The Boys Next Door." "People don't look me in the eyes. They think that retarded children can hurt them and they don't want them living next door to them. It really hurts me, because it's not true."

Curran said she feels pressured to perfection, because "this play done wrong can destroy everything we're trying to do. There is a fine line between depicting how it is for real life handicapped people and being able to laugh at them, with them, by them, for them and around them - and not make fun of them. And educate, not stereotype! Hopefully I'm sensitive enough to that that I don't cross the line."

According to Office for Children spokesperson Marie Cassidy, "the entire proceeds of the October 4th performance are earmarked for the Eastern Middlesex/Tri-City Council for Children to benefit special needs kids." Says Marie, "the Council sponsors camperships, Learning About Disabilities and various family support programs. Families from Everett, Malden, Medford, Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield benefit from these services."

Cassidy indicated that the $12 tax-deductible donation for the ticket will include the play, refreshments and valet parking. Tickets for the benefit performance are on sale now and may be obtained from Cassidy at the malden office at (617) 322-7889 weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

New Austin Development Director

AUSTIN PREP RECENTLY APPOINTED Michael T. MacNeil as Director of Development and Alumni Affairs.

Reading school's Director of Development and Alumni Affairs. Austin is a Catholic college preparatory school serving boys in grades 6-12 from cities and towns throughout the Merrimack Valley and the North Shore.

"We are very pleased that Mr. MacNeil will be joining the Austin family. He brings with him a strong commitment to Catholic education and an extensive record of accomplishment in the development field," said Mr. Moran.

Mr. MacNeil comes to Austin after having served in the same capacity at Trinity High School of Manchester, New Hampshire since 1983. His responsibilities will include the Austin Annual and Capital Giving programs, as well as strengthening the support network of the school's many friends, parents and over three thousand Austin alumni. A Boston College graduate and a native of Somerville, Mr. MacNeil now resides in Londonderry, New Hampshire with his wife, Patricia, and five children.

Breakthrough for infertile men

A New Hampshire man once diagnosed as sterile has become the first in New England to father a child through a new surgical procedure known as epididymal aspiration, or EA.

Vincent Benevento, 39, and his wife, Denise, 34, of Stratham, New Hampshire are expecting twins in November. They are among a handful of couples in the U.S. to employ EA successfully, and the first in New England to complete conception using in-vitro fertilization (IVF). Their story represents a breakthrough in male infertility for Dr. Vito Cardone, director of the New England Memorial Hospital Fertility Center, and Dr. Robert Oates of Boston's University Hospital.

Epididymal aspiration is a microsurgical procedure performed by Dr. Oates to draw sperm directly from the epididymis, a coiled tube attached to the testes. Males born without vas deferens, the tubes that carry sperm to the penis, or blocked vas deferens, show the zero sperm count that afflicts Vincent Benevento and many others.

The procedure requires several hours of surgery under local or general anesthesia to suction sperm directly from the epididymis. Once aspirated, sperm are evaluated for viability by a biologist and matched with eggs taken simultaneously from the man's partner. The eggs may be fertilized inside the woman's body in the GIFT procedure, or in the laboratory through IVF, as was done with the Beneventos. Dr. Cardone chose IVF as the safest way to verify fertilization.

The success rate for both EA procedures to date is known to be only about six percent.

Weeks of preparation by the Fertility Center and the Beneventos preceded the February operation. Denise Benevento drove from her New Hampshire home to Stoneham for 15 consecutive days to give blood samples, while Vin administered shots to her at home for 13 weeks. In February her cycle and all other signs were right for the carefully coordinated transfer, which ended nearly seven years of disappointment.

Married in 1980, the Beneventos decided in 1983 to have a child. After six months of trying, both went for tests. Denise was diagnosed as capable of conception, but Vin was told by a urologist that he had a zero sperm count.

According to Vin, a Certified Purchasing Manager for General Electric in Lynn, the couple avoided discussing the issue of adoption for four years. It was Vin's sister, Dolores, who recommended that he consult with Dr. Cardone. Dr. Cardone referred him to Dr. Oates, who diagnosed bilateral vasal agenesis, meaning Vin was born without either vas deferens.

Once Dr. Oates convinced Benevento that it was possible to draw sperm directly from the testes, Dr. Cardone's team prepared for in-vitro fertilization. The result, a boy and a girl, are scheduled for delivery by Thanksgiving.

Dr. Oates also recommends the EA procedure for men with blocked vas, or inadequate sperm count. Despite the low success rate to date, as news of the new procedure filters out, the handful of urologists trained in the procedure is experiencing rapidly increasing levels of interest and patient loads.

When The Great Russian Ice Show makes its North American Premier at the Centrum on October 4, 6 and 7, audiences will witness a show, a sport, a theatrical troupe and a ballet all-in-one. Soviet artist/athlete Igor Bobrin has spent much of the past 20 years bucking the sports establishment and overcoming obstacles and traditional attitudes that stood in the way of fulfillment of a dream - the entirely new concept of a dance theatre on ice.

The repertoire of the troupe has evolved as the talents and theatrical interests of the performers have developed and matured. Consisting of three parts, "Twentieth Century Faust," "Silent Movie," and "Divertissements," the Great Russian Ice Show blends powerful artistry with a modern synthesized musical score and state-of-the-art lighting.

SENIOR SPORTS ON CAPE CODE

An estimated 200 athletes, all aged 40 and over, have competed in regional qualifying events to compete at the state level in the eight sports offered at this annual event. Cycling and race walking will be held at the Cape Cod Regional Technical Vocational High School, Harwich, with fishing to be conducted at Cliff Pond, Nickerson State Park. In addition to providing housing and an operations center for the tournament, Ocean Edge Resort and Conference Center will also function as the competition site for croquet; aquatics; golf; bocci and horseshoes. Olympic Town will be located near the competition sites at Ocean Edge.

Appearing with her are comedians Julie Barr and Janine DiIulio.

Musician Cosy Sheridan rounds out the evening during Catch's New Late Night Acoustic Music program following the comedy on September 26 and 27. This line-up marks the beginning of Catch's series of all-woman shows this fall with headliners Linda Smith in October and Carol Siskind and Stephanie Hodge in November.

SERIES FEATURES "TALES OF HORROR"

Three stories by one of America's most gifted mystery writers are the subjects for the Boston Public Library's Monday night film series during October in the Rabb Lecture Hall in Copley Square.

The poems and stories of Edgar Allan Poe (1809-1849) lend themselves visually and stylistically to contemporary cinematic adaptations and during the 1960s the Hammer production company of England successfully filmed several stylish and exciting versions of Poe's haunting tales.

The BPL will present "Edgar Allan Poe's Tales of Terror" incorporating three of the most popular of these films starring Vincent Price and directed by Roger Corman.

The series begins October 1st with Poe's "Masque of the Red Death," "The Pit and the Pendulum" follows on October 15th and the series concludes on October 29th with "Tales of Terror." All programs begin at 6:30 p.m. and are free and open to the public. Seating is limited. For additional information, please call (617) 536-5400, Ext. 319.
